MENRY PETERSON & Co., Publishers, No. 319 Walnut St., Philad's, PHILADELPHIA, SATURDAY, AUGUST 20, 1870.

SOMEBODT'S LOVER

FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST. BY BEULAH.

He will be somebody's lover, I know, And fondly I pease the while, To muse on the beauty of that face Luminous with love's smile.

Strong and gentle, with tenderness rare As half-hidden lights that glow To becken the sailor boy far aloft, To the scean depths below.

Deeps are welling within his soul, Unsounded by morsal ken; Rich with the wealth of manly love— Who shall sound them?—and when?

I strain my eyes to watch his form, 'Till my cyclids fall like lead; I sleep to dream I am buried close, And his feet are above my head.

I waken to find the footfalls heard In my dream of restful bliss, Is but my heart that is throbbing fast With the memory of a kiss.

He kissed me once, the crimson flush Is dyeing my seck and brow, As I dream of that kiss with tender pain, And wish that the once was now.

He will be somebody's lover, I know, So manly, noble, and true, And the somebody loved—alas, poor heart! You are wishing it might be you.

BESSY RANE.

BY MRS. HENRY WOOD,

CANTERBURY'S WILL," &c.

PART THE SECOND.

CHAPTER XXI. THE TONTINE.

The tontine. If the reader only knew how important a share the tontine—with its results—holds in this little history, he would résults—holds in this little history, he would enter on it with interest.

Toutines may be of different arrangement. In fact, they are so. This one was as follows. It had been instituted at Whitberough. Ten gentlemen put each an equal sum into a common fund, and invested the whole in the joint names of ten children, all under a year old. This money was to be allowed to accomulate at compound interest, until only one of those children should be left alive: that one, the last survivor, would then receive the whole of the money unconditionally.

Of these ten children whose names were inscribed on the parchment deed, Oliver Rane and Bessy North alone survived. Mr. North had been wont to call it an unlucky tontine—for its members had died off rapidly one after another. For several years only three had been left; and now one of them, Geerge Masséy, had fellowed in the wake of those that were gone. Under ordinary circumstances, the tontine would have excited no comment whatever, but have gone on smoothly to the end: that is, until one of the two survivors had collapsed. The other one would have had the money paid him, and nothing been thought about it, except that he was a fortunate man.

But this case was exceptional. The two survivors were man and wife. For the good fortune to lapse to one of them, the other must die. It was certainly a curious position, and it excited a good deal of comment in the neighborhood. Dallory, as prese to goesip as other places, made it into that oft-quoted thing, a nine-days' wonder. In the general stagnation caused by the strike, people took up the tontine as a source of relief.

Practically the tontine was of no further ditionally.
Of these ten children whose names were Practically the tontine was of no further use to the two remaining members; that is, to the two combined. They were one, so to say: and so long as they continued to be such, the money could not ispee. If Bessy died, Dr. Rane would take it; if Dr. Rane died, she would take it. Nothing more could be made of it than this. It had been accumulating now just thirty years how much longer it would be left to accumulate, none could foresee. For thirty years to come, in all human probability: for Dr. Rane and his wife appeared to possess, each, a sound and healthy constitution. Nay, they might survive ten or twenty years beyond that, and yet not be very aged. And so, there it was; and Dallery made the matter its own, with unceremotious freedom. Practically the tontine was of no further matter its own, with unceremonious freedom.

But not as Dr. and Mrs. Rane did. They had need of mosey, and this huge sum (huge to them) lying at the very threshold of their door, but forbidden to enter, was more tantalizing than pen can tell. Richard North had not been wrong in his computation: and the amount as it stood at present, was rather considerably over two thousand pounds. The round sum, however, was large enough to recken by without counting odds and ends. Two thousand pounds Two thousand pounds theirs of right, and yet they might not touch it because one of them was not dead!

ASSESSED ON

100 m

The Puvjab is a vast plain, stretching southward from the base of the great Rimalaya mountains, which overshadow India along the whole range of its northern frontier. The word Puvjab means "five waters," the country being intersected by five rivers, which having their sources at various points in the mountain ranges to the north, flow southward, gradually approaching each other in their courses, suitil they all meet in one channel called the Puvjuud, or five rivers, which afterwards falls into How many hours they spent, discussing the matter with each other, could never be computed. As soon as the twilight of the evening came on, wherever they might be and whatever the occupation, the theme was sure to be drifted into. In the dining-room when it grew too dark for Dr. Rane to pursue his writing; in the drawing room, into which Beasy would while him, and sing to him one of her simple songs: walking together, arm within arm, in the garden path, the stars in the summer sky above them, the waving trees encompassing them around about, the aubject of the tontine would be taken up: the tontine; nothing but the tontine. It was no wonder that they grew to form plans of what they would do if the money were theirs: we all know how apt we are to let imagination run away with us, and, to indulge visions that grow to seem like reality. Dr. Rane painted a bright future. With two thousand pounds in hand, he could establish himself in a first-class metropolitan locality, set up well, both professionally and socially; and there would be plenty of money for him and his wife to live upon while the practice was growing. Bessy entered into it all as a cagerly as he. Having become accustomed to the idea of quitting Dallory, she never glanced back at the possibility of remaining. She thought his eager wish, his unalterable determination to loave it, was connected only with the interests of his profession; he knew that the dread of a certain possible discovery, ever haunting his conscience, made the place more intolerable to him day by day. At any cost be must get away from it; at any cost. There was a great happiness in these evening conversations, in the glowing hope presented by plans and pro-

the Indus. There little rain falls, and the country must be watered by irrigation. The rivers generally flow in deep beds, but a simple mechanical contrivance suffices to raise the water. This is the well-known Persian whoel. The machinery is placed over a khuria, or cut in the river's bank, and is worked by bullocks or camels. The water thus raised fills the small furrows which are thus raised fills the small furrows which divery different aspect, and the hard slay or sandy soil produces a few thorny husbes; vide the green patches of wheat and barley around the villages. In these cultivated parts of the Punjab are raised crops of wheat, morning and ask."

"The back won't listen to me, or to any"The back won't listen to me, It's body else in this matter, Bessy. It's against the law to pay the tontine over while two of you are alive, and the Tick-nells are too strict to risk it. I shouldn't do discovery, aver haunting his conscience, made the place more intolerable to him day by day. At any coet he must get away from it; at any cost. There was a great happiness in these evening conversations, in the glowing hope presented by plans and projects. But where was the use of indulging such, when the tontine money (the pivot on which all was to turn) could never be theirs? As often as this damping recollection brought them up with a check, Dr. Rane would fall into a gloomy silence. Gradually, by the very force of thinking, he saw a way, or thought he saw a way, by which their hopes might be accomplished. And that was, to induce the trustees to advance the money at orce to him and his wife jointly. Meanwhile the strike continued in unabated force. Not a man was at work; every one refused to do a stroke unless he could be paid for it what he thought right, and leave off his daily labor when he chose. One might have supposed, by the independence of the demands, that the men were the masters and North and Gass the servants. Privation was beginning to reign, garments grew scanty, faces pinched. There was not so much as a sixpence for superfluities; and under that head in troubled times must be classed the attendance of a medical man. It will readily be understood, therefore, that it myself in their places."

"What Oliver says is this, papa. The money must, in the due ownres of events, come to either him or me, whichever of us shall survive the other. We have therefore shall survive the other. We have therefore an equal interest in it, and possess at present an equal chance of succeeding to it. No one eise in the wide world, but our two selves, has the smallest claim to it, or ever can have. We are the only survivors of the ten; the rest are all dead. Why, then, should the trustees not stretch a point, and let us have the money while it can be of use to us conjointly? Oliver says they ought to do it."

"I know be does." remarked Mr. North. "I know be does," remarked Mr. North.

bated force. Not a man was at work; every one refused to do a stroke unless he could be paid for it what he thought right, and leave off his daily labor when he chose. One might have supposed, by the independence of the demands, that the men were the masters and North and Gase the servants. Privation was beginning to reign, garments grew acanty, faces pinched. There was not so much as a sixpence for superfluities: and dunder that head is troubled times must be classed the attendance of a medical man. It will readily be understood, therefore, that this state of affairs did not contribute to fill the pockets of Dr. Rane.

One day, Mr. North, sitting on the short, green beach in front of his choicest carmation bed, found two loving hands put round his neck from behind. He had been three parts asleep, and woke up slightly bewildered.

"Bessy, child! Is it you?"

It was Mrs. Rane. Her footfall on the grass had not been heard. She wore a cool priot dress and black silk mantle; and her plain straw bonnet aat well on, around the pretty falling curls. Bessy looked quict and simple always; and always a lady.

The mode of its does, "remarked Mr. North.

"Has Oliver spoken to you, papa?"

"No." anid Mr. North, "I heard about it from Dick. Dick happened to be at the bank yesterday, and Thomas Ticknell mentioned to him that Dr. Rane had been urging this request upon them. Dick asid Str. Thomas seemed quite horrified at the prosition; they had told Dr. Rane in answer that if they sould consent to such a this prosition; they had told Dr. Rane in answer that if they sould consent to such a this prosition; they had told Dr. Rane had been urging this request upon them. Dick asid Str. Thomas seemed quite horrified at the prosition; they had told Dr. Rane had two position; they had told Dr. Rane had told Dr. Bane in answer that if they sould consent to seemed quite horrified at the prosition; they had told Dr. Rane had told Dr. Bane had told D

"Not a bit of it, child."

"Not a bit of it, child."

A slience casued. Mr. North sat watching his carnations, Bessy watching, with a far-off gaze, the dark-blue summer shy, as if the difficulty might be solved there. In spite of her father's opinion, she thought the strings of her bonnet. There was a slight look of weariness on her face, as if the difficulty might be solved there. In spite of her father's opinion, she thought to here your a little worried with home cares. In truth she felt so: but all for Oliver's sake. If the money came not in so freely as to make matters easy, she did not mind it herself, but for him.

"Papa, I have come to talk to you," she began, laying one of her hands on his knee affectionately. "It is about the tontine money. Oliver thinks that it might be paid to us conjointly; that it ought to be."

"I know he does," replied Mr. North. "It can't be dose, Bessy."

Her countenance fell a little. "Do you think not, papa?"

"I am sure not, child."

"Papa, I am here this morning to beg of you to use your interest with Sir Thomas Ticknell for us. Oliver knows nothing of my coming. He said last night, when we were talking, that if you could be induced to throw your interest into our seale, the bank might listen to you. Bo I thought to myself that I would come to you in the morning and ask."

"The bank won't listen to me, or to anyhairs remaining on the old gentlemen's white beads, rose up on end.

Truly it had seemed to them, this singular application, as touching closely upon fraud.

Dr. Raue argued the matter with them, prt. hade argued the matter with them, putting it in the most feasible and favorable light: and it must be acknowledged that to his mind, it appeared a thing, not only that they might do, but that it would be in them perfectly right and honest to do. All in vain; they heard him with courtery, but were harder than adamant. Richard North happened to go in upon some business soon after the conclusion of the interview, and the brothers—they were the bankers to North and Gass—told him confidentially of North and case—told nim congretationly of the application. Richard imported it to his father; hence Mr. North heald Bessy with-out surprise.

Regarded in the narrow, legal view, of course the Messra. Ticknell might be right; but, taking it broadly and comprehensively, there could be no doubt that it seemed hard there could be no doubt that it seemed hard upon Oliver Rane and his wife. The chief question that had presented itself to Richard North's mind, was, if the money were handed over now, would the Massra. Ticknell, be quite secure from ulterior consequences? They said not. Upon Richard North's suggesting that a lawyer might be consulted upon the point, Sir Thomas Ticknell answer dethat, no matter what a lawyer might hav. agon the point, Sir I normal lickness answers, and that, no matter what a lawyer might say, they should never incur the responsibility of parting with the tontine money so long as two of its members were living. And I think they must be right, Richard remarked afterthey must be right, Richard remarked after-wards to his father. Turning to Bessy, sit-ting by him on the bench, Mr. North repeat-ed this. Bessy listened in dutiful silence, but shook her head.

"Papa, much as I respect Richard's judg-ment, ciever as I know him to be, I am sure he is wrong here. It is very strange that he he is wrong here. It is very strange that he should go against me and Oliver."

"It is because of his good judgment, my dear," replied Mr. North simply. "I'd trust it against the world, on account of his im-partiality. When he has to decide between may know them to be."

"Richard cannot think the men are no blame!" exclaimed Mrn. Rann.

"He lays the blame chiefly where, a says, it is due—on the Trade Union. men were deluded into listening to it at it and they can't belp obeying its dictates a they have given themselves over to it, and soul, Resay, and can no more estann a prisoner from a dungeon. The Richard's view, misel; and it makes his leminany: I'd try and bring 'em to t senses in a different way, if I had the pe and the means left me."

"In what way, paps?"

"Bessy, if I were what I once was wealthy man, independent of business-close the works for good: break 'em burn 'em if need he; anything but resthem. The trade should ge where it we and the men after it; or stop here starve, just as they chose. It's not I would have my peace of life worried ou me by these strikes; or let men, that employed and done liberally by always, tate to me. You're heard of the old say—outting off the nees to spite the fit that's just what the men will find they have. They'll find it, Besy, to their eas oure as that we two are sitting here."

Mr. North laid held of the hos that resting on the elbow of the beach, struck it lightly on the ground. Medicing doubt to give emphasis to his words. Be Rane peaced from the subject of the sit to that which more immediately concenter.

"Richard is honest, paps; he would not the struck it is beneat, and it is heart of the other."

"Richard is honest, paps; he would not be the struck it is heart of the sit to that which more immediately concenter."

Rane passed from the subject of the strike to that which more immediately concurred her.

"Hichard is homest, pape; he would never any what he did not think; but he may be mistaken sometimes. I conned understand how he can think the Tichnells right in refusing to let us have the money. If there were the alightest, smallest, reason for their keeping it back, it would be different; but there's nome."

"Look here, Bessy. If they go by the strict letter of the law, they cannot do it. The tontine deed was drawn up as tightly as anything can be: it expressly cays that nice of the members must be dead, and only the tenth remaining, before the money can be withdrawn from where it is invested. The Ticknells can't get over this."

"Papa—forgive me—you should not say can't, but won't." spoke Mrs. Rane. "They can do it if they please; there's nothing to prevent it. All power to not lice with them; they are responsible to none: if they paid over the money to Oliver to-morrow, not an individual in the whole world, from the Queen upon her throne to the youngest clerk in their counting-house, could call them to account for it. The strictest judge on the bench might not say to them afterwards, You have paid away money that you had no right to pay."

"Boop a bit, Bessy—that's just where the weak point lies. The Ticknells say that if they parted with the money sow, they might be called upon for it again at some future time."

Bessy sat in amassement. "Why! How Bessy sat in amassment. "Why! How could that be?"

Mr. North raised his straw hat and rubbed his head before he replied. It was a somehis head before he replied. It was a some-what puzzling question.

"Dick put it somehow in this way, my dear: that is, Thomas Ticknell put it to him. If you should die, Bessy, leaving your husband a widower with children (or, for the matter of that, if he should die, leaving you with some) the children might come upon the Ticknells for the money over again. Or Rane might come upon them, if he were the one left; or you, if you were. It was in that way, I think Dick said, but my memory is not as clear as it used to be."

"As if we should be so dishonorable! Besides—there could be no possibility of claiming the money twice. Having received it once, the Ticknells would hold our receipt for it."

Mr. North shook his head. "The law is once, the rickness would hold our recession for it."

Mr. North shook his head. "The law is full of quips and turns, Bossy. If the trustees paid over this money to you and your husband now, sgainst the provisions of the tontine deed, I suppose it is at least a nice question whether the survivor of you could not compri them to pay it again."

Bessy held her breath. "Do you think they could be compelled, papa?"

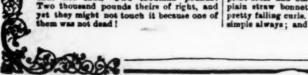

"Well, I don't know, Bessy. I fancy perhaps they might be. Dick says they are right, as prudent men, to refuse. One thing you and Oliver may reat assured of, my dear—that, under the doubt, the Tickness will never be got to do it as long as one and ash grow."

grow."

Bessy Rane sighed, and began to tie her bonnet. She had no idea that the paying of bonnet. She had no idea that the paying of the money would is volve the trustees in any liability, real or fancied, and hope went out of her from this moment. By nature she was as just as Richard; and she could not henceforth even wish that the Ticknells should incur the risk.

"Dick's indoors, my dear, if you'd like to ask him what Sir Thomas said; he would explain it to you better than I have. No haste now, to go off in a morning: there's no works open to go to."

works open to go to.

The ball was cupty. Bessy was about to enter the drawing room in search of her half-sister, when the door opened to give Madam egress. The two touched each other. half-sister, when the tour openes of the half sister, when the two touched each other. Madam stared haughtily, stepped back, and shut the door in Beesy's face. Next moment, a hand was extended over Beesy's shoulder, and threw it wide.

"By your leave, Madam," said Richard North calmiy. "Room for my sister."

He marshalled her in as though she had been a duchess. Madam, drawing her lace has a lacent of the shoulders, swept maje stibeen a duchess. Madam, drawing her lace shawl around her shoulders, swept majesti-cally out, vouchsafing neither word nor look. It was nothing more than the contempt often dealt to Bessy: but Richard's blood went up

That the refusal of the trustees to part with the funds of the tentine was irrevocable, there could be no doubt : nevertheless, Oliver Rane declined to see it. The matter got wind, as nearly everything class seemed to do in Dallory, and many of the public took his part. It was a frightful shame, they thought, that a man and his wife could not thought, that a man and his wire could not be let enjoy together the money that was their due, but must wait for one or the other's death before they got it. Jelly's tongue made itself particularly busy. Dr. Rane was not a favorite of hers on the whole, but she espoused his cause warmly in this. "He's such a temptation," remarked Jelly, to a select few, one night at Ketlar's, whither she had betaken berself to blow up the man for continuing to hold out on strike, to which movement Jelly was a determined foe.

foe.

"A temptation?" rejoined Tim Wilks, respectfully, who made one of her audience.
"In what way, Miss Jelly?"

"In what way," retorted Jelly, with some scenn. "Why in the way of stealing the money, if it is to be got at; or of punching those two old bankers brads. When a man's head out of his own through nothing but kept out of his own through nothing but some naggering crotchet, it's enough to make him feel desperate, Tom Wilks."
"So it is, Miss, acquiesced meek Timothy. me—which it's twenty pounds a year, and her left-off sike—I should fight at it, I know: perhaps take 'em. And this is two thousand

"You-you don't mean the murdering of her!" shricked Mrs. Ketlar, who was a timid

"Yes I did," replied Ti I did," replied Timothy Wilks, might be found to do it. No offence to Dr. Rane. I'm putting the suppositions case of a bad man; not of him."

CHAPTER XXII. AT THE SEA SIDE.

The summer was slowly passing. At a mail and obscure sea side place on the East mast, was located Mrs. Cumberland. See had engaged part of one of the few good houses there—houses that let at an enor-mous price in the season to visitors—and lived in it with Ellen Adair, and her maid to wait on her. Not Jelly, this time, but the housemaid, Ann. Mrs. Cumberland's own house at Dallory was being painted inside during her absence. She had deemed it well to leave Jelly in charge; and so brought Ann dise.

"I here beard enough paps; I quite understand it now," was Mrs. Ruo's answer, was derstand it now," was Mrs. Ruo's answer, was destinated in the wast, as just one of those has the advertised disapprointened to Oliver when he hears that no chance of how, is left. It would have been—absume the had again were horse could not be hear that he had again. "No. Emporing since the stitle ast in the men one" pay," "No. Emporing since the stitle ast in the men one" pay," "No. Emporing since the stitle ast in the men one" pay," "No. Emporing since the stitle ast in the word of the state of the s the two, and she remembered only the last letter, mu-t ever remain a question. Certain it was, that she took this present cordial approbation of Mr. Adair's to apply to Arthur Bohuo. It might be, that she had entirely forgotten having written about Mr.

Graves.

With her usual reticence, she said nothing to Ellen Adair. Not a word. Time enough for that when Arthur Bohun should speak— if he ever did speak. She held the consent ready for use if necessity ever required it; and was at case.

"Ellen, how you mope!"
Ellen Adair looked up, faintly blushing as the abrupt charge, which came from Mrs

Cumberland, "Mope!" exclaimed Ellen,
"My dear, you do nothing else, I don't think you like Easteea."
"Not very much. At least—it's rather dull."

dull. "Well, I suppose you can but find it so; confined in doors half my time, as I am. At Niton you had often Captain Bohua to go Niton you had often Captain bound to go out with; now you have to go alone."

Ellen turned away, a soft blush rising to her face at the remembrance of Niton.

"Shall you be going home soon, do you think, Mrs. Cumberland?"

think, Mrs. Cumberland?"
"On dear no. I had a note from Jelly this morning, and she says the house is not half doce. Lazy idlers, work-people sre!
once you get them into a place you can't get them out. But if Jelly were ready for us, I should not go. This air is doing me good on the whole. Perhaps I shall stay the winter Eilen's heart fell within her. All the au tumn in this place, that verily seemed to ber like the fag end of the world, and all the winter? Should she ever again get the chance of seeing her heart's love, Arthur Bohun? Aud he?—perhaps he was forgetting her.

D. you feel well enough to come out.
Mrs. Camberland?"

Mrs. Comberland?"

"No. I am sorry, Ellen, but you must go alone. Get your things on at once, child: the afternoon will be passing."

Ellen sighed. It was of no moment to ber whether she went out or stayed in: she obeyed mechanically, and went forth.

The sunshine played in small sparkles on the clear blue sea, ever changing its hue for one different and more brautiful, as the light antumn clouds floated above it in the perhaps take 'em. And this is two thousand pounds,"

"Two thousand pounds!" ejaculated honest Ketlar, in a low tone of reverence, as he lifed his hands. "And for the doctor to he kept out of it because his wife's not dead! It is a shame."

"I'd not say, either, but it might bring another sort of temptation to some men, bearded show the seen from it but the sea and the sky. Overables those mentioned by Miss Jelly," put in Timothy Wisks, with hesitation.

"And pounds!" ejaculated and watched it. It was her favorite seat: one head apparently frequented only by herself, as she had never head to Eiten Adair. Mrs. Cumberland did not wish to entarge ou this point; it might not be; Capitain Bohun hold no future thoughts in alone knew; perhaps she was wholly miss head to say was this—that if Capitain Bohun hold no future thoughts in regard to Miss Adair, she mut request him to terminate his intimacy at once. When she will head to be a private one.

"And port the doctor to be the middle to Eiten Adair, Mrs. Cumberland did not wish to entarge ou this point; it most wished to say was this—that if Capitain Bohun hold no future thoughts in regard to Miss Adair, she mut request him to entarge ou this point; it most wished to say was this—that if Capitain Bohun hold no future thoughts in regard to Miss Adair, she mut request him to terminate his intimacy at once. When she would be her, and she had her diary; she had read a few pages in the one, she had written some from the time that altohed to Eiten Adair. Mrs. Cumberland did not wish to entarge ou this point; it might not be; Capitain Bohun hold not wish to entarge ou this point; it most wish to entarge ou this point; it most to wish to entarge ou this point; it most wish to entarge ou the might he not wish there? I suppose a winter might be got through in this place, and one be alive at the end of it, but—"

A gentleman in deep mourning walking by A gentleman in deep mourning walking by on the strip of beach, looking this way, looking that. Ellen's thought's were cut abort summarily, and she rose with a faint cry: the cry of interse joy that is so near akin it its sound to that of exquisite pain.

For it was no other than Captain Arthur Bohun. He had not heard it; but he saw her: it was for her he had been looking: and he turned to her with an outstretched.

and he turned to her with an outstretched hand. For a moment she felt utterly be-wildered, half doubting the reality of the vision. But oh yes, it was he; it was he! The sea, and the sky, and the rocks, and the monotony—they had all changed into para-wound in ireians; the irish insisted on it that that was the original song; and he had sometimes got Elien to sing it so for him since. The children ceased their play; the verses went on, and they, these unseen two below the rocks, listened to ed to the end, catching

"Yet her I loved so well, Still in my heart shall dwell, Oh I I shall ne'er forget Ellen Adair,"

"Nor I," softly spoke Arthur, as the re-

"Nor I," softly spoke Arthur, as the re-frain died away.

They quitted the seat at length. As they passed through the town, the man was sing-ing before a house: "The Minstrel Boy." His hat was in his hand; he looked as though he had seen better days and might have been a gentleman once. Captain Bohus put a shiling into the hat.

Mis. Cumberland was up when they got in. Ann had told her of Captain Bohun's spearance and that he had gove to find Miss Adair. Mrs. Cumberland took a few minutes for consi teration, and then decide! on her

Adair. Mrs. Comperion took a rew minutes for consi iteration, and then decide lon her course of conduct: and that was, to speak to Captain Boban. It might have been all very well, while she was armed with no authority, tacitly to countenance Captain Boban's frequent visit-but now that she had authority, she deemed it right, in justice to Eden, to take a different it right, in justice to Elen, to take a different standing. If Captain Bobun had serious in-tentions, well and good; if not, she should request him to bring the intimacy to a close. Feeling the responsibility that lay upon her as the sole guardian in Europe of Ellen Adair, she thought she should be justified in saying thus much: for, unless Arthur Bohun pur-posed to make the young lady his wife, it was cruel to allow her to love him. When Mrs. Cumberland once made her mind up to any resolve, she did not usually lose time in putting it in practice: and she lost none here. Taking the opportunity this same evening, when Etlen was out of the room, sent from it by herself on some errand of excuse, she spoke to Captain Bohun. But the most fastidious man living could

But the most fastisticus man introg content have taken exception to what she said. She spoke entirely as a lady. Captain Bohun's appearance that day at Eastsca—coupled with the remembrance of his frequent sojourns at Niton when they were steying there, and his constant visits to her house at Dailory Ham—had revived a faint plant had sometimes presented itself to house at Danley Ham—and review a vaint idea that had sometimes presented itself to ber mind: namely, that he might be growing attached to Eiten Adair. Mrs. Cumberland did not wish to enlarge ou this point; it might be, or it might not be; Captain Bohun manded Jelly, in a tart voice—for she made it a point to keep Timothy under before company.

"The putting of his wife out of the way on purpose to get the money, Miss Jelly," spoke Tim, with deprecation.

"You it was don't reach a book with her, and she had be diary; she had read a glad to see him at her house occasion few pages in the one, she had written some lines in pencil in the other; and so the hours passed, and she was utterly dieary. The weary day was but the type of the other companies to get the money, Miss Jelly," spoke Tim, with deprecation.

"You it was don't was a book with her, and she had her diary; she had read a glad to see him at her house occasion just as any other visitor; but nothing she got back to Dallory Ham she woul her, and she had her diary; she had read a glad to see him at her house occasion just as any other visitor; but nothing she glad to see him at her house occasion just as any other visitor; but nothing she glad to see him at her house occasion just as any other visitor; but nothing she glad to see him at her house occasion just as any other visitor; but nothing she glad to see him at her house occasion just as any other visitor; but nothing she was utterly die yet.

To this Arthur Bouun answered cand equive the pages in the one, she had read a glad to see him at her house occasion.

To this Arthur Bouun answered cand equive the pages in the other; and so the hours passed, and she was utterly die yet.

"Will it ever come to an end?" she murmured, having watched a tiny pleasure-boat shoot past and disappear, leaving her to her silent solitude. "Shail we ever get back to Dallory Ham, and—and the friends that live there? I suppose a winter might be got through in this place, and one he alives at too. she could not allow Ellen to be played with. And upon that, Arthur begged to have the night for reflection; he would see Mrs. Cumbeiland in the morning, and give her his

It was left at that. When Ellen returned to the room—entirely unsusp crous of what had been said during her few minutes ab-sence from it—Captain Bohun took his departure. Arrived at the hotel where he had put up, he devoted himself to the considera-tion of the grave question, weighing it in all its bearings as fairly as his love for Etlen allowed him to do. Of course that biassed to leave Jolly in charge; and so brought Ann instead.

They had been at this place, Eastesa, for some weeks now; and Eden privately believed that the sojourn was never coming to an end. Anything more weatisome than it was to beer, could not have been found. Arthur Bohun was is London at his uncle a where he had been staying for some time. It was several weeks since he and Ellen had attired him, at this, their relieved that the mojourn was never coming to an end. Anything more weatisome than it was to beer, could not have been found. Arthur Bohun was is London at his uncle a where he had been staying for some time. It was several weeks since he and Ellen had attired him, at this, their relieves the responsibility. Proving how ardent was the feeling that attired him, at this, their relieves the responsibility. Proving how ardent was the feeling that attired him, at this, their relieves the responsibility. Proving how ardent was the feeling that attired him, at this, their relieves the responsibility of the second and the responsibility. Proving how ardent was the feeling that attired him, at this, their relieves the responsibility of the second ment, being then a mid-deaged man of 600, doubtless just beging the late were considered with gray. His fatter, Lamech, cut off prematurely at the age of 177, died five years before the flood. Judal, recently sung by George Elicit, belonged to the same generation as Metuustian being the consideration. His same should meet; to her it seemed as many months, at one time appearing to be peat technic than the responsibility of the second to be easier. It is also the same generation as Metuustian being the floor of the solour end of the responsibility in the country we should not see this country was frequently not defined the province of the family to the appropriation of the solour end of the responsibility in the country was frequently not of the solour end of the responsibility in the country was frequently not of the solour end of the responsibility in the country was frequ civion of Arthur. One fact was known to him—that James Bohuw, since this illness out in, had joined his father in outting off the entail, so that the threat of leaving the estates away from Arthur (even though he world have her his wile without the world a tase in the only plan, if Mrs. Cumbertand and Ellen world at beone! Affight this he? Very slowly, and the sentitul measure estates a the only plan, if Mrs. Cumbertand and Ellen world accede to it, was a private marriage.

Arrangements are so easy when inclination lies with them. The future looks very much as we ourselves paint it. They might he married at once, here at Easteea. If James Bohun recovered and lived, why there could be no question of the title or the estates lapsing to Arthur, and he might avow his marriage as coon as he aleased. If James Bohun recovered and leased. If James Bohun recovered and lived, why there could be no question of the title or the estates lapsing to Arthur, and he might avow his marriage as coon as he aleased. If James Bohun recovered and leased. If James Bohun recovered and lived, why there could be no question of the title or the estates lapsing to Arthur, and he might avow his marriage as coon as he aleased. If James Bohun recovered and leased. If James Bohun recovered and lived, why there could be no question of the title or the estates lapsing to Arthur, and he might avow his marriage as coon as he aleased. If James Bohun recovered and lived, why there could be no question of the title or the estates lapsing to Arthur, and he might avow could be no question of the title or the es-tates lapsing to Arthur, and he might avow his marriage as soon as he pleased. If James died, he should not, as he fully believed, have to concest it long, for he thought Sir Nash's life quite as precarious as James's. A few months, perhaps only weeks, and he might be able to tell the world that Ellen, was his wife. He felt an inclination to whisper it beforehand to his good friend and anot, Miss Bohun. But, he must first of all association from Mrs. Comberland what was ascertain from Mrs. Cumberland what was the social standing of Mr. Adair. Unless he the social standing of Mr. Adair. Unless he were a gentleman undeniable, Ellen could be no fit wife for a Bohun. Arthur, swayed by his love, bad hitherto been content to take this assumed fact for granted: now he saw the necessity of ascertaining it more explicitly. It was not that he had any real doubt; only it was but right to make sure.

Mr. Adair held some post under the British Government, formerly in India, for a long white now in Australia. His wife had died young; his only child, Ellen, had been sent to a first-class school in E gland for her education. Upon its completion, Mr. Adair had begged of Mrs. Cumberland to receive her: he had some floating thoughts of returning home himself, so that he did not wish Eilen to go out to him. An impression was afloat in Dillory that Ellen Adair would inherit a good fortune; also that Mrs. Cumberland was affost in Dellory that Ellen Adair would inberit a good fortune; also that Mrs. Cumberland received liberal remuneration for the expenses of the young lady. These generalities Arthur Bohun knew; but he knew no more.

He paid the promised visit to Mrs. Cumberland in the morning. Ellen was on the beach with the maid; there was no interpuntion, and their converse was long and beach with the maid; there was no interruption, and their converse was long and confidential. Heaven alone knew how Arthur Boban succeeded in getting Mrs. Cumberland to believe in the necessity for the marriage being kept private. He did it. But he used no subterfuge: he frankly told of the pr-judice his mother had taken against Ellen Adair, and that she had gained the ear of Sir Nash. In short the area against of Sir Nash. In short, the same arguments he had used to himself the previous evening, he urged now. Mrs. Cumberland—naturally bissed against Madam from the injury she strove to work Dr. Rane—thought it a frightful shame that she should strive to destroy the happiness and prospects of her own son Arthur, and she sympathized with him warmly. It was this feeling that rondered her more easy than she would other-wise have been—in short, that made her give her consent to Arthur splan. To coun-teract the would-be bitter wrong contem-plated by Mrs. North, she considered would have by airs. North, she considered would be a meric on Arthur's park, instead of a sin. And then, when things were so far settled, and the speedy marriage determined on, Mr.s. Cumberland astonished Captain Bobun by putting Mr. Adair's letter into his hands, explaining how it came to be received, and what she had written to that gentleman to call it forth. "So that her father's blessing what she had "So that her father's blessing will rest on the marriage," remarked Mrs. Cumberland: "but for that fact, I could Cumberland: "but for that fact, I could not have consented to a private one."

This gave Arthur the opportunity to ask about the position of Mr. Adair—which, in the heat of argument, he had been forgetting. Certainly he was a gentleman, Mrs. Cumberland answered, and of very good Scotch family. Major Bobun, Mr. Adair, and her own husband, George Cumberland, had been firm friends in India at the time of Major Bobun's death. She could not help tinking, she added in conclusion, that it was the remembrance of that early friendship which induced Mr. Adair to give so ready and coroisl a consent to his daughter's union with Major Bobun's son.

And so there the matter ended, all couleur-de-rose: Arthur believing that there could ast as any other visitor; but nothing more.

To this Arthur Bohun answered candidly berland's in search of Eilen, with the light so small and few. And then the dampness nough. He did like Eilen Adair: if cirof love flushing his cheeks. He found her ornage. He did like Ellen Adair: if circustances permitted he would be only too gind to make her his wife: but, as Mrs. Cumberland knew, he had bitherto been very poor. As he pleased, Mrs. Cumberland tations hitherto had been nothing but de- tism that night which he did not fully recorum and formality; as witness that of the cover from for months. We therefore advise previous day.

"G sod-morning," said Ellen, rising and heloing out ber hand.

heloing out her hand.
Instead of tasting it, he took her. Took her in his arms with a half-cry of pent-up emotion, and laid her aweet face upon his hreast, kissing it with impassioned kieses.
Ellen utterly astonished, could not get away. "Do not shrink from me, my darling. I is all right, Ellen. You are going to be m wife."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

SPEAKING of "personals," a gentleman. who has been bitten by the arithmetical mania, has ciphered out the time, within aix weeks, of the death of Methusetah. That weeks, of the death of Meriuseran. I was partiared died in the year of the world 1656, the very year of the flood. Unless, therefore— which is too dreadful to be believed—he was actually drowned in the deluge, be must have died in the first week of the year; for He had enough to marry upon now. By the death of the relative for whom he was nonuruled a year. With his own income, that hundred a year. With his own income, that his father,

The terms of THE POST are the embed these of that beautiful magneties, THE LADT'S FRIEND—do are that the outs may be made up of the paper and magneties conjectually when we desired—and are as follows:—One copy (sed a large Frending mideo Ragraving) $2.50 f Two copies $4.50 f Frending mideo Ragraving) $2.50 f Two copies $4.50 f Frending mideo Ragraving) $2.50 f Two copies $4.50 f Frending mideo Ragraving in addition.

Subscribers in the British Provinces must result twenty cents exist for postage. Papers in a club will be ent to different post-offices if desired, Single numbers ent on receipt of six cents, Contents of Post and of Lady's Friend always entirely different. Bubersbers, in order to save themselves from ioss, should, if possible, procure a Post-office order on Fhiladolphia; or yet a draft on Philadelphia er New York, papeble to our order. If a draft cannot be had, and a check payable to our order on a National Bank; if even this is not procurable, send United States hotes and register the letter. Do not send money by the Express Companies, unless your past-office, County, and State.

**REWN INSTANCES AND STANCES OF The Month price $55. By remitting the difference of price in Each, and higher priced Machine will be send. *Revy as $5.50, will get the Fremium Heed Expression, for the Lady's Fremium Letter for 5 cents—of the Lady's Fremium Letter for 5 cents—of the Lady's Fremium Heed Expression.

**HENRY PETERSON & Coup.

**319 Wainst $64, Philadelphia.**

HENRY PETERSON & CO., 319 Wainut St., Philadelphia.

Notice.-Correspondents should always keep copies of any manuscripts they may send to us, in order to avoid the possibility of lose; as we cannot be responsible for the safe keeping or return of any manuscript.

MRS. WOOD'S NEW STORY.

We commenced in THE POST of May 21st Mrs. Henry Wood's new story. It is entitled

BESSY RANE;

By Mrs. HENRY WOOD, Author of "East Lynne," "George Canterbury's Will,"

&c., &c. We think our readers will find BESSY RANE as powerfully written and deeply interesting as "George Canterbury's Will.",

The commencement of "Bessy Rane" is an excellent time to commence new subscriptions to THE POST. Our readers will oblige us by suggesting this to their neighbors and friends.

THE RECENT BATTLES. As nearly as we can make it out, the result of the first series of battles between the Prussians and the French, shattered beween two and three of the seven great corps into which the French army was divided.

The Prussian successes would appear to be the result of massing their forces just where they were wanted, and thus obtaining the preponderance of force. They have taken a leaf out of the great Napoleon's strategy, not being too proud to learn of an enemy. It would seem to have been thus a triumph of generalship.

The French line has been thrown back some twenty miles, leaving a strip of French territory of that width in the possession of the Prussians.

Before we go to press another great battle may be fought, which may either brieg the Prussians to the fortifications of Paris, or fling them back to the Rhine. God be with the Right! or, rather, God is with the Right, alike in victory or defeat.

THE list on Mount Washington, called the Tip Top House, rests for $3,000 for the season—about six weeks usually. The charges are six dollars a day.

And a friend informed us not long since, that he never came nearer being smothered in his life than last year in that same Tip Top House. Although on the top of Mount Washington, it seemed impossible to get a was such, that he got a touch of rheumaour readers to beware how they take lodgings at the Tip Top House, under the idea that they are about to have a Tip Top time. The altitude is Tip Top, and the charges Tip Top, but the discomforts of a night's ledging are something a little short of purgatory. It At least this was our friend's experiencemy other travellers, at a more favorable time, may have a pleasanter story to tell of a night on Mount Washington.

THE American Legion, to which we alluded some days ago, says Galigoani's Messenger of July 29, has defluitely obtained leave to organize itself. It will be five hundred strong—all Americans, except the commander-tu-chief, who will be French, and appointed by the Minister of War. It will form part of the other free corps in course of organization. of organization.

THE New York papers are worrying them-selves greatly about the yellow fever which they say is in Philadelphia.

Some of the New York papers are a good deal infected with the yellow fever of Jealoney, which frequently breal a cut in ugly splotches in their columns. What small potatoes it is-this little rivalry b.tween the large American cities. Suppose a neighboring city is larger than your own, what of it? Can we not strive to build ourselves up, without striving to pull others down? A little innocent fun occasionally is one thing, but a serious attempt to injure by lying and detraction and unfair rivalry is another.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

LIFE OF CHARLES DICKENS. By R. SHILTON MACKENEIR, LL. D., Listerary Editor of the "Philadelphia Press." With Personal Recollections and Aneodotes; Letters by "Box," never before published; and uncollected Papers in Proce and Verse. With Portrait and Autograph. Published by T. B. Peter-on & Bros., Philads.

CONIGERT; OR, THE NEW GENERATION. By the Rights Hon. BENJAMIN DISRAKLI, author of "Lothair." "Venetia," "Henrietta Temple," etc., etc., Published by D. Appleton & Co., New York; and also for sale by Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, Philads.

THE WOMEN OF JERAEL. By GRACE

Philada.

THE WOMEN OF ISRAEL. By GRACE
AGUILAR, sutbor of "Woman's Friendship," "Mother's Recompense," "Vale of Cedars," etc. In two volumes. Published by D.
Appleton & Co., New York; and also for sale by Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, Philada.

THE OVERLAND MONTHLY. Devoted to THE OVERLAND MONTHLY. Devoted to the Development of the Country. For August. Published by John H. Carmany & Co., San Francisco; and also for sale by the American News Company, 116, 119, 121 Nassau St., New York.

THE XIX. CENTURY, For July. Published by the "Nineteenth Century Co.," Charleston, S. C.

PUNCHINELLO. Published by the "Punch-ello Publishing Company, 83 Nassau St., ew York. Appleton's Railway and Stram Navi-GATION GUIDE. For August. Published by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

Interesting to Soldiers-New Home stend Law.

atend Law.

To answer the numerous inquiries addressed to the interior Department, the following information is furnished respecting the act of July 15, 1870, granting additional rights to soldiers desiring to enter homesteads on lands within railroad limits:

Under the original act only 80 acres, at $250, of land could be entered as a hemestead. By the amendatory act any bonorably discharged soldier, who has served not less than ninety days in the military, naval, marine or revenue marine service during the rebellion, is entitled to enter as a homestead 160 seres of $250 land, upon payment of the legal fee of $10, and the usual commission on the cash value of the lands, allowed as compensation to the Register and Receiver.

The requirements as to the personal resithe requirements at to take personal resi-dence upon and improvement and cultiva-tion of the homestead selected, are not waived or altered in any respect, they being the fundamental conditions upon which all the provisions of the eriginal homestead law and the acts amendatory are based.

Monteguma's Long Sleep.

Montegumm's Long Steep.

The stone face in the desert near Gila Bend is believed by the M-xican Indians to be that of Montexuma, who will one day awaken from his long sleep. "So strong is the belief in some parts of Mexico," says the Overland Monthly, "that people who passed through that country years ago tell of some localities where fires were kept constantly burning in anticipation of Montexuma's early coming. It looks as though the stern face up there was just a little softened in its expression by the deep alumber that hol's the eyelids over the commanding eye, and all nature seems hushed into death-like stillness. Day after day, year after year, contury after century, alumbers the man up there on the artillness days and life and vegetation. century after century, slumbers the man up there on the height, and life and vegetation sleep on the arid plains below—a slumber never disturbed, a sleep never broken, for the battle-ory of Yuma, Pimo and Maricopo, that once rang at the foot of the mountains, did not reach Montesuma's ear; and the dying shrieks of the children of those who came far over the seas to rob him of his scaptre and crown fall unbecded on the rocks and the deserts that guard his sleep." rocks and the deserts that guard his sleep."

The Newark Advertiser argues that the reason why New Jeney receives so large a share of the leaving Government appoint-ments is, that "it has the men for the places; men who not only possess ability, but have been bred in that school of seif-re-pect and personal honor which is the price of our state, and which manifests itself here in a pure and able judiciary, an eminent bar, a general respect for law and the obligations of commercial codes, and in the prompt punishment of crimes, no matter in what rank of society they may two young men came in, escorting two young tadies. There were no vacant seats, and the Governor and his friend surrendered their to the ladies. What was their

Yellow Springs, Ohio.

POR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

Yellow Springs is situated in the Mismi Valley, about mid-way between Cincinnati and Columbus. The name is derived from the fact that the famous Yellow Spring, asid to contain superior medicinal qualities, is situated in the anburbs on the property of Mr. Neff. During the past year a very elegant and capacious hotel, known as the Neff House, has been exected near the Spring, at an expense of $200,000. This is one of the most inviting summer resorts in the country, being second to but one in this state. Our village is also the location of Antioch College, founded by Horace Munn in 1953. This institution furnishes equal facilities of education to both sexes, and has thus far been a grand success. Among her trustees are Rev. G. W. Hosmer, D. D., President, Rev. H. W. Bellows of New York, and Rev. E. E. Hale of Boston.

CROPS.—The crops in this vicinity are not so heavy as usual, owing to drought in early apring. There is about three-fourths of a crop of wheat and casts, and from present appearances corn will be the same. Then there was a good yield of small fruit, but apples and peaches are almost a complete failure here.

MANLAU.

A Live Lard Loose in this Country.

A Live Lerd Leese in this Country.

A question which for a long time past has excited considerable interest and conjecture in English society is, What has become of Lord Aberdeen? This young nobleman, a young man of twenty-three, left England about two years ago without giving any clue to his whereabouts, and has not communicated with either his friends or his family since. Information has reached them, however, that he shipped as a common sailor on board a merobantman, bound, it is believed for this country, and it is further stated to have been ascertained that he has since passed the examination for his ship as mate. No sati-factory cause is assigned for this strarge conduct, but it has been supposed that, having taken up the notion that his e-tute is more heavily encumbered than it really is, he has resolved to live for some years merely on the fruit of his own earnings, while a sufficient sum accumulates to liquidate the charges on the property. Meanwhile there is said to be a very large sum of money lying to his credit at his banker's, which might be profitably applied.

Lord Aberdeen is grandson of the Lord Aberdeen who was Premier of England in 1854. The family is remarkable for tacturaity, and Haddo, the ancestral seat, was said in the Minister's time to be the most oppressively silent house in England.

The brother of the present peer, a promising young fellow, remarkable for his extraorolary skill with a rile, died under melancholy and mysterious circumstances when a student at Cambridge, and his family have never been able to communicate this sad event to the cluer brother.

melancholy and mysterious circumstances when a student at Cambridge, and his family have never been able to communicate this sad event to the close brother.

Lord Aberdeen is not the only man of his rank, in the present generation, who has proved impatient of its condition, and determined to adopt the e of a different phase of existence. Lord Ockham, who, had he lived, would now be Lord Westworth—Byron's grandson, and he'r to his father's carldom of Lovelace—evinced asimilar taste. After a great deal of atrance and troublesome conduct Lord Ockham took regular employ in the yard of Mr. Scott Russell, the eminent London ship-builder. On one occasion, having need of money for the purchase of some instruments, he wrote to his grandmother, Lady Noel Byron, for the required sum, which was promptly supplied. The check was drawn to the order of Viscount Ockham, and he accordingly, is his workman's dress, walked into a great London banking-house and presented it. The clerk glabced at it, and then handed it back, saying, "It is drawn to order, and needs his Lordship's endorsement," upon which, to the indignation of the officer, the rough mechanic scized a pen and scribbled "Oukham" on the back. The scaudalized clerk immediately signailed the constable in attendance to arrest the forger, as he supposed, and the culprit was led into the parlor right, pay the check." Lord Ockham at the time of his death was engaged to a young girl of highly respectable antecedents, in humble life, whose parents were almost to the last ignorant of the real position of the Lord Amerdeens (pretender.) in various parts of the country.]

THE last number of the National Medical THE last number of the National Reduces Journal contains a paper written by Dr.
John H. Griscom, of this city, and recommending the use of the sulplite of soda—a compound of sulphurous acid and soda—in limits all diseases dependent mon the vioccur."

The yacht Magic, Franklin Osgood owner, won the race at New York—twelve yachts competing. The Dauntless was accord, and about one minute behind. The America was fourth, and fourteen minutes behind. The Cambria, disabled, came in twenty-eight minutes behind.

The poor of Berlin are mi-rably housed. The last ceusus showed that a tenth of the whole population of the city lives in cellar dwellings, which are so destructive of good beatth. Besides there, seven per cent, live in dwellings from five to sign and intermittent (ever, ergsipeias, scariatina, and intermittent (ever, ergsipeias, ever, ergsipeias, ever, ergsipeias, ever, ergsipeias, ever, ergsipeias, ever, ergsipeias, ever, ergsipe stories high.

E3 Governor Fairchild, of Wisconsin, is not only a gallant man, but joccse. He was riding in a car lately with a friend, when two young men came in, excerting two of sods, is in short a sort of panacea. About 2 young ladies. There were no not only a gallant man, but joccse. He was rotal hemography. The sulphite of sods, is in short a sort of panacea. About 2 young ladies.

desert steers to the ladies. What was their astonishment to see the young men occupy the seats and take the young ladies in their laps! "By George," said the Governor, "we might have cone that!"

"Why dear," said a sentimental wife, "home, you know, is the dearest spot on earth." "Well, yes," said the practical humband, "it does cost me about twice as much as any other spot."

"Wants Ong World Changed." "Are you colored in the libite that in "Are you colored in "Are you colored in the libite that in "Are you colored in the libite that in the young ward in the Bible that in "Are you colored in the libite that in the or "Are you colored in the libite that in the young ward in the Bible that in the or "Are you colored in the libite that in the young ward in the Bible that in the young ward in the

A French paper relates a thrilling scena which lately occurred in a Parisian matric. A couple presented themselves to be married, the bride about eighteen years of age, and possessed of considerable personal attractions; the bridegroom, an extremely small mane, aged forty-five. When the ceremony was concluded, the door of the hall was burst open, and a woman of gigantic stature, accompanied by a thin dansel of fifteen, burst into the room and elbowed her way through the semiuirele of guesta.—"Wretch, soundrel, this?!" the cried, addressing the husband, who turned as white as a sheet; "this is how you leave me in the lurch, who have sighed during fifteen years for the day when I might call myself your wife!" Saying this she seized the unhappy man by the cellar and jerked him up under her left arm as though he were a caush hat, taking no notice of his struggles. She addressed the mayor in a voice of shunder, "Do I arrive too late!" "The marriage has taken place," replied the mayor, "and I request you to release M. Augustin, and to retire." "Not," said the giantese, "without giving his deserts to the villian who leaves me with this girl here." "No, no, that girl is not mime, howled the llittle man. He had better have remained silent. The piantees frantically raised him in the air, and whirled hun round her head. "Repeat what you have said!" she shriched; "this child, who is as like you as one pea is to another—is she yours or not?" M. Augustin did not open his mouth. He executioner then seized his nose with her left hand and wrung it violently. About this time two of the guests, moved by the entreaties of the bride, altempted to interfere; but the enraged woman, using the bridegroom as a weapen, and brandshing him at ann's length, onarged her opponents with each of the guest, moved by the entreaties of the bride, altempted to interfere; but the enraged woman, using the bridegroom as a weapen, and brandshing him at ann's length, onarged her opponents with each of the publication, here for the survey of the injured ary size of his understandings, said to him:

"You must take cold easily, Sam; I should think you would be sick all the time."
"How so?" asked Sam. "Why," replied Tom, "because there's se much of you on the ground."

Toun, "because there's se much of you on the ground."

"I have a good mind to present you with a silver cup," said a grateful friend.
"I shall so prise it," was the reply; "it will keep you ever in my mind." "Yet nothing ornate and costly, my friend, but just a plais mug—like your own."

"The London Lancet says there is nothing like the following for the cure of felons:—"As seen as the pulsation, which indicates the disease, is felt, put directly over the sput a fly blister about the size of your thumb nail, and let it remain for six hours, at the expiration of which time, directly under the surface of the blister, may be seen the felon, which can instantly be taken out with the point of a needle or lancet."

taken out with the point of a needle or lancet."

(A) Let all haymakers take warning from the retribution which has overtaken Moses Lyman of Huntington, Mass. This agricultural person, having just cut his hay, was driven to great indignation by an nutimely tempert, and even awore roundly at the thunder. Those who were about bim remonstrated, and predicted that if he went on abusing the thunder in that way, the lightning would be sure to strike his house. They were right. The lightning did strike his house, taking particular care, however, not to injure any of the inmates. It now becomes a question whether it is exactly safe to swear at the sun, even in the hottest weather; for perhaps the poor people who have been sunstruck were guilty of precietly that most natural indiscretion.

The Order of the Day.

A general order of Soconor. In the teeth of all opposition it has become the supreme dentrifice of the age.

No impurity can infest the teeth cleaned daily with Socodost. Quillay, the bark of the Chilian Soap superior to those of any other known substance, is one of the ingredients of this periess compound, socodost is the only dentrided in existence is which this anishrious botanical product is Incorporated.

"Spalding, the day of the Chilian Soap superior to those of any other known substance, is one of the ingredients of this periess compound, this anishrious botanical product is Incorporated.

"Spalding, the Day.

A general order of Rosonora. In the teeth of all opposition it has become the supreme dentrifice of the age.

No impurity can infest the teeth cleaned daily with Socodost. Quillay, the bark of the Chilian Soap superior to those of any other known substance, is one of the ingredients of this periess compound, standard the only dentrifice in existence is which this anishrious botanical product is Incorporated.

"Spalding, the continuous day of the Chilian Soap superior to those of any other known substance, is one of the ingredients of the spalling superior to those of any other known substance, is o

An idea prevails in England that Lord Aberdeen is in this country; and should be chance to read this notice of him, it is desires that it may lead him to relieve the anxiety of his family.

[The above is from the N. Y. Post. Probably in a few weeks, there will be a dozen Lord Aberdeens (pertender, in various parts.) can reason ut the soler, over the caner, where one lever lets out the steam. The water-tanks and bunkers for coal are above the boilers on each side of the cab. In going in one direction one half of the lecomotive is going ahead and the other backing, and the latter goes ahead when the ateam is re-versed, and the other half backs. Thus the secessity of turn tables is avaided, and it is hops."

Whiche" is the latest name given to 6 es at enmmer resurts. gay scenes much better than the word

Later returns from the North Carolina election state that five Conservative and two Republican Congressmen have been elected. The Legislature is estimated to elected. The Lagislature is estimated to stand: Senate, 32 Conservatives, 18 Republicans; House, 75 Conservatives, 45 Republicans; House, 75 Conservatives, 18 Republicans; House, 18 Republic licens.

27 A New York couple bave quarrelled over their silver wedding presents, and each applied for a divorce.

28 A Providence policeman a ked a drunken Ethiop whom he could scarcely see Sways's Olstans's Courtains' is the sim light of a station-bouse of l-"Are you colored?" "Colored, no; dis year band, "it does cost me about twice as much as any other spot."

Let "O", mother," said a little boy, as be stood looking at a lake by moonly bt, and seked for ten yards of cloth suitable the whom sprinkles down on the water!"

In many service,"

Let "A young woman went to Stewart's, the other day, be stood looking at a lake by moonly bt, and seked for ten yards of cloth suitable the whom sprinkles down on the water!"

In many service,"

Let "A n assistant United States Marshal in Louisville, in taking the centus, asked a colored woman what personal property she possessed, to which she replied: "Nothin' but deed tree chilles yere, an' dey and wuth much sheet the 'mancipation procklermation!"

IN THE POEER. - The fire-poker, by corstant use, become a soft, and is generally more or less hous. This arises from its being left in the fire and becoming red-hot, and then being put on this fender, where is slowly cools—an operation which softens the best ateal. When a poker has thus become soft and here. when a poker has thus become soft and bent, it may be again hardened by mak-ing it hot two or shree times, and plunging it every time thut is in hot into a pail of cold water. The rapidly cooling of steel makes it again hard.

13 CHARMINGLY GRIOTNAL .- One of

THE MARKETS.

THE MARKETS.

FLOUR—1000 bbls changed hands, including superfine as $5,005a, %; extens at $46a,50 lows. Wisconsin, and Minnescan extensinily at $5,76a,7.80; Pennsylvania extra family at $76a,7.80; Pennsylvania extra family at $76a,7.81; Indiana and Ohiu de de at $7,85a,8 and fame; lots at $5,005,9 with the second of the second indiana, in lots, at $1,47. Hye is steady at $1,100; 1300 bus of the second indiana, in lots, at $1,47. Hye is steady at $1,100; 1300 bus new Ohlo and Indiana, in lots, at $1,47. Hye is steady at $1,000, 1,15 for old Pennsylvania and Western. Corn dult sales of 2500 bus Pennsylvania policy at $140,100, and 400 hus mixed at 78,547c. Oast dult at $10,651c for old Pennsylvania, and $00,51c for new Southern; also of Moss Perk at $300,81c for old Pennsylvania, and $00,51c for new Southern; also of Moss Perk at $300,81c, and 400 hus hams at 736,36c, and pickled hams at $10,51c. Sale and also pickled hams at $10,50c. Sales at 160, and 1400 hydrogen of the second of

PHILADULPHIA CATTLE MARKETS.

The sapply of Beef Cattle during the past week smounted to about $600 head. Tre prices realized from $12.9% one $9. 150 Cowe brought from $16.00 to 75 $9 head. Sheep-14.580 head were disposed of at from $20.00 to 15,75 $9 100 Be.

depressed in spirits. At this juncture, a clerk in the establishment where he had been employed, per-suaded him to try a course of PLANTATION BITTERS. Last week he returned to business; his health being cian who attended him, when the following conver estion occurred ;- "What!" said the doctor;

"Even so," replied Mr. Redding quietly. "You re not sorry to find yourself a false prophet, I hope? "No, no; certainly not. But it's a miracle. How him the story of his recovery (sacribing it wholly to the Bittern) and is willing to confirm it verbally or

The new food-source, SEA Meas PARINE, is be-coming very popular with all classes. As a table-desert, it is the chespest and most delicious in the world.

Interesting to Endies. My wife has a Grover & Baker Sewing Machine

cost nothing for repairs in that time, and has given entire eati-faction in every respect."—D. M. Smith, Scratch! Scratch! Can't Sleep O'Nights. SWATEN OFFERST.

SWATEN ONTERST.

SWATEN ONTERST.

SWATEN ONTERST.

SWATEN ONTERST.

SWATEN ONTERST.

ALL SKIR DURAFES.

No case so obstinate or long standing it will in mre. Frice 50 cmt. a box. Sent by mar for 60 cm octage puid. Address Dr. was ara & Son. 820 No thist, Philadelphia. Sold everywhere. aug6-cor Sthat., Philadelphia.

that to UP own to AP One Pound of Crampton's Imperial Landary Name will make reverse agartic of Handame bord Phone All Miles of Statistics, be Front St., Sew York.

ASIATIC CHOLERA, DYSENTERY. CHOLERA WOLBUS, CURED AND PREVENTED

BY RADWAT'S READT RELIEF. BHEUMATISM. NEURALGIA,

DIPTHERIA, INPLUENZA

BORE THEOAT, DIFFICULT RESAFRING,

HELIEVED IN A PEW BINUTES,

BY RADWAYS SEADY BELLEF.

Pain instantly removed; all scute, inflemmatory, malarious or infectious thesares prevented and ex-terminated. The weak, (mblc, and nervous restored terminated. The weak, (m blc, and across restored to strength, vigor, and round health by the use of RADWAY'S READY RELIEF. One bottle will do more good, cure more complaints, and keep the clomach more clear and healthy than $10 spent for all other more clear and healthy than $10 spent for all other modeledges. il) other medicines or hitters in use,

BOWEL COMPLAINTS.

Losseners, distribus, choiers marbus, or painful discharges from the bowels are stouped in fitteen or twenty minutes by taking Radway's Ready Relief, No congestion or inflammation, no weakness or las-situde will follow the use of the R. R. Belief.

ACRES AND PAINS

ACURES AND PAINS.

For headache, whether sick or acrous; rhommatism, lumbago, pains and weakness in the back, spire, or hidneys, pains around the liver, piousley, swellings of the joints, pains in the howels, hearing burn, and pains of all hinds, Radway's Bondy Belley will afferd immediate case, and its continued use for a few days effect a permanent cure.

Bold by druggists, and at No. 97 Maiden Lene, Poles. 50 cents.

Diseases that progress rapidly to a crisis are not the only ones to be dreaded. Canker or dry rot does but unless arrested, it destroys it as certainty; and in like manner chronic debility, although it does not kill with the swiftness of yellow fever, is are sugar to sap the springs of life eventually as any senio disease, if not checked by invigorating medication. There is something insupressibly touching in the speciacle of premature decay. Languor, piller, emaciation, depression of spirits, and a distants for exertion, are its ordinary symptous, and they should be promptly met by tonic treatwent. The best invitorant and axhilarant that can be administered to a case of this kind is HONTETTER'S STOMACH SITTER'S. The estimulating principle of the preparation rouses the dormant energies of the system, and the strength ning and regulating properties give a permanent and healthful is spine to the vital forces thus brought into play. The falling appetite is re-awakened, the process of digestion and assimilation are quickened, the quality of the blood is improved, the secretions become more natural, and every organ that contributes to the noarishment of the body undergoes calutary change. By these means the repair of the physical structure is effected and its health and vigor restored. In no class of diseases has the henceficient operation of the Blitter been more marked and striking than in these characterized by general debility and nervous prostruction. Laddes affected with three aliments fand in this most wholesome of all tonics and correctives the andest and surest means or relief. It is strong to restore and powerles xio injure, such is the uniform testimony of "clouds of witnesses." in like manner chronic debility, although it does

What Did It?—Lyon's Estheiren mafe my hair soft, luxuriant and thick, and Hagan's Magnetis Balm changed that railow complexion into the marble beauty you now see. This is emphatically the language of all who me there articles. A fine head of hair and a refuned complexion are the grestest attractions a woman can possess. The Estheiron and Magnolis Balm are just what will give them to you, and nothing clae will. The Balm is the bloom of youth. It makes a lady of thirty appear but twenty. Both articles are entirely harmless, and very pleasant. They should be in every lady's possession.

Psychomancy, Pascination, or Sou harming, 400 pages cloth. Full instructions to use Charming, 600 pages cloth. Full instructions to use this power over men, or animals at will, how to mea-merize, become trance, or writing mediums, Divi-nations, Spiritualism, Alchemy, Philosophy of Omens and Dreams, Brigham Young's Harem, Guide to marriage, &c., all contained in this book, 100,000 copies sold. Agents wanted. For particu-lars address, with postage, to T. W. Evans & Co., 41 couth 8th st., Philadelphia, Pa. my$1-5m

Impuriant Notice,—Ail Soldiers and Saisors who have lest an arm or leg in the service—or eince on account of wonds or legaries—will find it to their advantage to call at or address General Collection Agency, No. 135 Youth Seventh st., Philadelphia. Honnaw S. Lazauuz & Co.,

MARRIAGES.

Marriage notices must always be accompanied by a responsible name.

Mr. Aton this city On the 3d instant, by the Rev. Wm. H. Furness Orchos Gountay, M. D., to Mrs. Amanda G. Por-Orchor Gournay, M. D., to Mrs. Amado G. Por-tes, both of this city.

On the 4th Instant, by the Rev. J. H. Peters, Mr. Rossind B. N. Les to Miss Size H. B. savos, danchier of Benj. H. Faston, Key, both of this city.
On the 8th Instant, by the Rev. Wm. Newton, Mr. Throdors V. Borwoniu to Miss Libria C.
Mort, bot of this city.
On the strain.

BEATHS.

Notices of Deaths must always be accompa-iled by a responsible name.

On the 9th instant, Mr. N. H. Woors, Printer, aged 70 years.
On one 9th inetant, Martin P., wife of Geo. W. Fulton, in her 19th year.
On the 8th inetant, William C. Marker in his On the 8th instant, William II Elleoff, aged 19
On the 8th instant, William II Elleoff, aged 19 Years. On the 7th Instant, GROBOR KEYSER, in his 90th On the 7th instant, Mrs. RESPONDED HENDERS, in ber 78th year. On the 7th instant, Carmanian Anisa, in her 42d On the 6th instant, Mr. Thomas Russells, in his 26th year, On the 6th instant, Respects, wife of Wm. Bowen, in her list year.

PROSPECTUS.

Easy Way to Get a Sewing Machine.

We announce the following Novelets as already engaged for publication :-

Bessy Rane.

By Mrs. HENRY WOOD, Author of "East Lynne," "George Centerbury's Will," &c.

Leonie's Mystery.

By FRANK LEE BENEDICT, Author of " Dora Castell," &c.

A Novelet

By MRS. MARGARET HOSMER, Author of "The Mystery of the Reefs," &c.

Who Told !

By ELIZABETH PRESCOTT, Author of Between Two," " A Family Failing," &c.

Besides our Novelets by Miss Douglas, Mrs. Wood, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. Hosmer, Miss Prescott, &c., we also give in

The Gems of the English Magazines.

And also NEWS, AGRICULTURAL, AR-TICLES, PORTRY, WIT and HUMOR, RID-DLES, RECEIPTS, &c.

When it is considered that the terms of THE POST are so much lower than those of any other Pirst-class Literary Weekly, we think we deserve an even more liberal support from an appreciative public than we have ever yet received.

A large Premium Engraving is given to every full ($2.50) subscriber.

U' Grever & Baker's Sewing Machines given as a Premium for 30

See TERMS under editorial head. Sample numbers (postage paid) are sent for 5 cents,

Summer Conveniences,

REPRIGERANTS.

REPRIGERANTS.

During the heated term all cooking appliances are in demand; hence we forego our narrative of fashions in dress, and chronicle some of the devices by which housekeepers preserve the good things of the table fresh and sweet. To begin with refrigerators, the upright closet-shape is preferable to flat chests, because in the former the ice is placed at the top, the provisions below, and the cold air descending produces a light, dry, cold temperature in the provision chambers, instead of the damp, heavy air that fills flat instead of the damp, heavy air that fills flat chests where the ice must be placed at the chests where the ice must be placed at the bottom. In arranging provisions in a re-frigerator the strongest-flavored fruits should be placed lowest. Butter, fruits, and meat should not be permitted to come in contact with melting ice, as this bastens decay. To keep rinc-lined closets pure and clean they should have, besides their daily cleaning, a thorough wash with saleratus water once or twice a week.

twice a week.

A new refrigerator is commended from the fact that its temperature may be controlled. Its provision chamber may be made sufficiently cold to arrest decay in the fruits and meats placed within it without freezing them, or it may be made cold enough to freeze milk, wine, or water in a very short time. All moisture that would prompte dee. All moisture that would promote de-is frozen, leaving the air so perfectly that game and fruit have been preserved in it for six weeks. The ice is powdered and mixed with salt. There is a separate compartment for ice for table use. From compartment for ice for table use. From $18 to $55 is the price.

The Nonparell continues in favor as a refrigerator for family use. The ice chamber is at the top, the wire shelves for provisions below. It is lined with ains and filled in with charcoal. Small sizes of this patent are sold for $16; large ones are more expensive in proportion, as a wine cooler, with separate lock and key, is attached to them. The Alaska refrigerator is said to consume less ice than any others—a consideration of importance this season. The ice chamber has a galvanized iron floor not easily penetrated by the ice-pick.

trated by the sce-pick.

Among the novelties is a refrigerator and water cooler combined, made of cast iron with white porcelain lining throughout. It is encased in black walnut, and the faucet of the water cooler is silver plated, thus making a handsome piece of furniture. The prices range from $45 to $55.

Another ornamental and useful novelty is Abouter ornamental and useful noveity is the rotary shelf refrigerator, a sort of ice cabinet of octangular shape, made of chest-nut or walnut, very prettily decorated, and mounted on easters. The inside is a perfect cylinder filled with shelves of cast iron, arranged to revolve, and thus bring to the door at the front any article that may be desired. The ice is placed on a dish above the shelves and covered with galvanized iron. A water

An ice cupboard of japanned tin about two feet square is shown, for the convenience of people who beard or keep house in small apartments. A chamber at the top is par-titioned off for ice, while the shelves below are arranged for mitk and water pitchers. The wine cooler has a security lock. The wine cooler has a separate lock. Price

WATER COOLERS, PREEZERS, ETC.

The Dominion water cooler is an improve-The Dominion water cooler is an improvement on the old plan, as it has a separate chamber for the ice in the centre, keeping it apart from the water, and, therefore, making it last longer. A cooler of japanned tin, colored and grained in mitiation of oak, and large enough to hold two gallons of water, costs $8. A new water filter is claimed to be a purifier of water, removing from it all taste, color, and odor.

The best ice-cream freezers have inside dashers that beat the cream constantly while

The best ice-cream freezers have inside dashers that beat the cream constantly while it is freezing, making the frozen mass perfecule smooth, and at the same time bastening congelation. Freezers of this kind, holding two quarts, costs $3.30; for each additional quart $1$ is added to the price. The cottage freezer, of simplest construction, is $2.75 for half-gallion sizes. In mixing pounded ice and sait for freezing cream the proporten should be one part of sait to three of ice. By adding more sait the freezing will be hastened, but the cream will freeze in flakes instead of in a smooth may. French moulds shape the cream into fracciful or frozen statuettes of nymphs and flower-girk, or hariequius and clowns. More popular than these are the fluted pyramids for bowls, or flat block moulds for low broad salvers. The pyramidal moulds cost from $1 to $1.75. Individual moulds, holding only enough cream fur one saucer, and shaped like fruit or shells: price 75 cents.

Les pitchers of plated hilver are of jug and barrel shape, with a lining of glass half an inch thick. These are/preferable to unlined metallic pitchers, as the metal acts upon the water and soon becomes perceptible to the taste, if the water is not renewed frequently. The glass lining is adrewed in so that it may by readily removed to clean it, and is too thick to be easily broken. Such pitchers oost about $20.

Bilver-plated wine coolers have a cylindrical centre for a bottle, separated from the ice basin. A rim of silver at the top conceals the ice basin. Price $15.

HOUSEHOLD NOVELTIES.

Many other new and convenient things are shown at the house-furnishing stores. Among these is a bread and cake closet, which is an improvement on the ordinary cake hox. This is a small tin cupboard, with separate spartments for bread and cake, and a drawer for small cakes. The door, painted in imitation of papier mache, opens the full length of the cupboard, and is fastened by a lock and key. There are three sizes, coating from $3 to $450. A plate-draining rack is a series of wooden upright divisions with rests in front. The plates stand separated and edgewise between the partitions, secure from being broken, and the water drains from them into a dishbelow. Cups, tumblers, and other small articles are placed on the resits in front. Price $5. A new tea-strainer is fastened by a HOTSEHOLD NOVELTIES. below. Cups, tumblers, and other small articles are placed on the rests in front. Price $5. A new tea-strainer is fastened by a spring to the spout of the tea-post, keeping it stationary, instead of swinging back and forth and dropping the tea on the salver. A peach-stoner is a very sharp kuife with a half curve in the centre of the blade, for carving out the stone of a peach, or for coring apples: price $5 cents. A simple and convenient kuife-sharpener consists of a couple of porcelain knobs, with a band of emery between, over which the kuife edge is to be passed. The price is 60 cents. A seasonable novelty is an apparatus for preserving fruits and vegetables by steaming them. A boiler, with a projecting base, on which the jars of fruit rest, has pipes at the top, through which the steam is conveyed ioside the jar, permeating the fruit, and preparing it to be sealed up in a very short time. In this way the fruit is preserved with all its natural flavor, its form is retained, and many fruits will keep their original color. Prices very, according to the number of pipes, from $3 to $6.

Among cooking utensils are new broilers and gridrous that promise to do away with that chief of all culinary atrocities—fried meat soaked in burned grease. One of these, having a covered top and wire bottom, pro-meat soaked in burned grease. One of these, having a covered top and wire bottom, pro-fesses to broil a steak in seven minutes, retaining all its juices and flavors, without re-quiring any preparation of the fire—a blazing fire serving as well as a bed of coals. It answers for stoves of all sizes, and may be used for toasting bread, baking potatoes, and, if a finer wire grate is added, for roastand, if a finer wire grate is added, for roasting coffee and popping corn. Price $2. A gridiron for cooking meat on top of a stove has a grooved iron bottom for holding the gravy, and a close-fitting cover of tin for retaining the flavor: $1.50 to $2. A reversible griddle for cakes has four small aunken forms for cakes, making them all of the same size. The griddle is covered, and reversed from side to side, as waffle-irons are, thus browning both sides of the cakes alike. Price $1.75.

For the laundry are smooth and brightly polished flounce-irons, useful is this era of ruffles and furbelows. They are long-pointed and slender, not measuring more than two inches at their greatest breadth. Price $1.0 ther irons have the handles wrapped with fancy-colored leather strips, forming a check-fancy-colored leather strips, forming a checkered pattern, and serving to protect the hands from the hest. Small fluting-irons, with revolving cylinders turned by a crank, are sold for $7.50. The Climax iron does are sold for $7.50. The Climax iron does both flating and orimping, and has a clamp, moved by the foot, for holding the cylinders apart while the ruffles are being placed between; price $11.

For the dining-room are new chairs made with very high short arms, sufficient to give ample rest, and yet leave room for a lady's skurts between the chair and the table. Though made of massive-looking walnut, and upholstered with scarlet or green morocco, the chair is almost as light as an ordinary cane-seated chair. Handsomely studded with silver or brass nails, they cost $14 each. Gong-bells for the dining-room, silvery toned, yet loud enough to reverberate very toned, yet loud enough to reverberate Breakfast casters in the new hape are made of silvered wire. Netted wire stands for fruit are sold for $1. A new silver plating, sold for cleaning plated silver, gives it the appearance of a fresh coating of silver. It is $1 a bottle. For cleaning pure silver-ware silversmiths say there is nothing better than to dip the article in boiling water, wipe with a soft muslin cloth, and then polish with chamois leather.

A pretty folding chair for country parlors or chambers is called the French cottage It is made of crimson or blue cords chair. It is made of crimson or blue cords, held together by rubber bands, in an open pattern. It is as cool and softer than canesested chairs. Price $12. A folding chair of oak, with came back and seat, and with movable chints cushions, is $11. A rustic settee for two is made of knotted branches of dark woods: price $18. Swinging hammocks for summer speats under shade trees. ark woods: price $18. Swinging ham-ks for summer siestas under shady trees

The handsomest mosquito nets for this season are of pink or white lace, edged with white ball fringe. They are made with equare or oblong canopies, suspended from the ceiling and draping the bed to the floor. Various arrangements are shown for contracting them into a small space during the day,  $\xi$ 10 to  $\xi$ 15 is the price of a handsome net. Plainer netting is  $\xi$ 6 or  $\xi$ 8. -Bizar2.

A countryman stopped at the Maxwell House, Nashville, for dinner. The waiter inquired what he would have, and was told by the countryman to bring "something of what he had." The waiter brought him a regular dinner upon small dishes. usual form, and set them around his plate. The countryman surveyed them carefully for a moment, and then broke out, "Well, I like your samples; now bring me dinner."

Are pearls more precious than happiness and in that morning when she shall wake writes (his sight is poor), uses the writing-frame on which Prescett, the historian, wrote his last works. It is a frame with wiree across to guide the glass peacil, so that one can write with eyes closed.

And lifelong sorrow a breath on the pan-Affantic Monthly,

DOROTHY IN THE GARRET.

BY F. T. TROWBRIDGE.

In the low-raftered garret, stooping Carefully over the creaking boards, Old Maid Dorothy goes a-groping Among the dusty and colvebbed hoards; Seeking some bundles of patches, hid Seeking some bundles of patches, hid Far under the caves, or bunch of ange, Or eatched hung on its nail, amid The heirlooms of a by-gone age.

There is the ancient family cheet,
There the ancestral cards and hatchel;
Dorothy, sighing, siaks down to rest,
Forgutful of patches, sage, and satchel.
Ghosts of faces peer from the gloom
Of the chimney, where, with swifts an real,

And the long disused, dismantled loom,
Stands the old-fashioned spinning-wheel.

She sees it back in the clean-swept kitchen, A part of her girlhood's little world; Her mother is there by the window sticking:

Spindle buzzes and recl is whirled
With many a click. On her little stool
She site, a child, by the open door,
Watching and dabbling her feet in the pool
Of sunshine spilled on the gilded floor.

Her sisters are spinning all day long; To her wakening sense, the first sweet warning
Of daylight come, is the cheerful song
To the hum of the wheel in the morning.

Benjie, the gentle, red-cheeked boy,
On his way to school, peeps in at gate:

In neat, white pinafore, pleased and coy,
She reaches a hand to her bashful mate.

And under the elms a prattling pair, Together they go, through glimmer and gloom—
It all comes back to her, dreaming there
In the low-raftered garret room;
The bum of the wheel, and the summer

The heart's first trouble, and love's beginning,
Are all in harmony linked together:
And now it is she herself that is spinning.

With the bloom of wouth on cheek and lip. Turning the spokes with the flashing pir Twisting the thread with the spindle-try, Stretching it out and winding it in. To and fro, with a blithesome tread, Binging she goes, and her heart is full; And many a long-drawn golden thread Of faucy is spun with the shining wool.

Her father sits in his favorite place, Her father sits in his favorite place, Puffing his pipe by the chimney side;
Through curing clouds his kindly face
Glows upon her with love and pride.
Lulled by the wheel, in the old arm chair
Her mother is musing, cat in lap,
With beautiful drooping head, and hair
Whitening under her snow-white cap.

One by one, to the grave to the bridal, They have followed her sisters from door; door; low they are old, and she is their idol....

It all comes back on her heart once more. In the autumn dusk the hearth gleams brightly,
The wheel is set by the shadowy wall—hand at the latch—'tis lifted lightly,
And in walks Benjie, manly and tail.

His chair is placed; the old man tips His chair is placed; the old man tips
The pitcher, and brings his choicest fruit
Benjie basks in the blaze, and sips,
And tells his story, and joins his flute;
Oh, sweet the tunes, the talk, the laughter
They fill the bour with a glowing tide;
But sweeter the still, deep moments after,
When she is alone by Benjie's side.

Oh, then the weary, weary days!

Oh, then the weary, weary days!

Ever with restless, wretched heart,

Plying her task, she turns to gaze

Far up the road; and early and late

She harks for a footstep at the door,

And starts at the gust that swings the gate,

And prays for Benjie, who comes no more.

Her fault? Ob, Benjie! and could you steel Your thoughts toward one who loved you so? Solace she seeks in the whirling wheel, In duty and love that lightens wo; Striving with labor, not is vain, To drive away the dull day's drearing Blessing the toil that blunts the pain Of a deeper grief in the body's weariness Proud, and petted and spoiled was she; A word, and all her life is changed !

In the great, gay city grows estranged.

ne year: she sits in the old church pew—

A rustle, a murmur—Oh, Dorothy! hide Your face and shut from your soul the

'Tis Benjie leading a white-veiled bride!

Now father and mother have long been And the bride sleeps under a churchyard and a bent old man with griszled head Walks up the long, dim side alone.

Years blur to a mist; and Dorothy Sits doubting betwirt the ghost she

And the phantom of youth, more real than That meets her there in that baunt of Bright young Dorothy, idolized daughter, Sought by many a youthful aderer, Life, the a new-risen dawn on the water, Shining an endless vista before her! Old Maid Dorothy, wrinkled and gray, Groping under the farmhouse caves— And life is a brief November day That sets on a world of withered leaves!

Yet faithfulness in the humblest part And patience and love in a cha Are pearls more precious than happiness!

And in that morning when she shall wake

To the spring-time freshness of youth

Sun-Dial Mottoes.

BY HOWARD HOPLEY.

Sun-dials are not abundant in England. They do not take kindly to the land of shadow and mist. They want the southern noone of Italy and Greece to call them into being. They are plentiful enough on the Riviers. Some years ago in travelling that mountain path from Cannes to Genoa, I encountered so many, that I determined at last to copy their mottoes; for each had its motto ostentationsly placed. No man could look up at those eame dials without finding a sermon—it might be a pithy aphorism thereon—such as he could take away, turn over, and sagaciously runinate upon. A hungry rustic, for example, impatient for the dinner-hour, might—if he could read Latin, that is—be told of the "emptiness of earthly food to satisfy man's cravinga." Thus, coveting grosser sustenance, he would receive mental food, and each time he looked at the clock, the chance was renewed of his becoming a wiser and a better man. The residence is a suffer and a better man.

ing grosser sustenance, he would receive mental food, and each time he looked at the clock, the chance was renewed of his becoming a wiser and a better man. The road runs up and down through hoary clivergroves and purple vineyards; by hamlet and village on the mountain slopes. Here, day after day, at every village we passed, I drew up at the market-place, and took down the motto from the sun-dial. It was usually written in good bold letters, over a white-washed space marked out with skeleton shadows, and the hours in a circle. A long from spike stood out at an angle from the wall to tell the time on the whitewash.

How ancient an institution the sun-dial may be, we are not going to ask here. It is very certain that King Ahas knew of it. Herodotus says the Babylonians first adopted it as a measure of the day. The old Egyptians seem to have done without a dial. Unless, indeed, those stately obelisks soaring into the blue heaven at On and Thebes, may have served as gnomons and pointers, whose shadows, travelling round on the plain, marked off the circling hours upon the deert sands, even as the solem ruins now strewn beside them mark off millenniums on the sands of time. As for the modern Egyptians, they still have a way—those of Upper Egypt, at least—of planting a palm rod in a space of flat ground, and counting time by its shadow falling on stones arranged in a circle. I have seen a fellah leave his buffalo in the furrow, and with all the glee of a school-boy whose playtime was come, rush up to this primitive contrivance to see outlate in the furrow, and with all the glee of a school-boy whose playtime was come, rush up to this primitive contrivance to see whether he might quit work—whether, in fact, the shadow was far enough advanced; an illustration of the text, "Like as the laborer earnestly desireth the shadow." The first dial came into Rome 290 B. C. And Plautus, in one of his comedies, rails at the new-fangled contrivance. He thinks it an innovation anything but conducive to com-

"A plague upon the man who first found out How to distinguish hours. Plague on him too

Who in this place set up a sun-dial,
To cut and hack my days so wretchedly
Into small portions. When I was a boy, My stomach was my sun-dial. One m sure,

Truer, and more exact, than any of them.
This dial told me when I was proper time
To go to dinner—when I had aught to eat.
But, now-a-days, why, even when I have,
I can't fall to unless the sun gives leave.
The town's so full of these offensive dials,
The greatest part of its inhabitants, Shrunk up with hunger, creep along the streets."

By the side of the sunny, dusty road, just as you enter Nice, there is a homely cottage, with a sun-dial above a vine-mantled trellis, baving this motto written in Italian, in a

I go every night, and come back every morn ing, But thou will depart without ever returning.

An echo to this is found in one I have elsewhere seen, appended to the ecening hours on a wayside cadran:

" Haste, traveller, the sun is sinking low, He shall return again, but never thou."

There is a quiet old Franciscan monastery, picturesquely perched on the top of one of the olive-clad hills behind Nice, in whose sunny cloisters I have beguiled many an afternoon chatting with the monks. The mid space is filled with early spring flowers, which the venerable fathers assiduously cultivate, make garlands of, and distribute to the lady visitors, who Peri-like cluster ruefully at the wicket gate of this cloister, but may not enter. Only men folk are permitted to go in, and these flowers, therefore, console the heartburnings of such as perforce stay out. Here, then, sitting under an arch's grateful gloom in that monastic cloister, my glance There is a quiet old Franciscan monastery. gloom in that monastic cloister, my glance used to fall upon the following motto, scrawl-ed upon a dial in monkish Latin which I

Thy hour and mine hurries away On the wall of the quadrangle above me planted so as to catch the later sunshine and take up the parable, there was another with this inscription: It flies and tarries not,

While again, at an angle of the cloister be-neath the belfry, where the last glowing light of the setting sun could reach only in part, was another:

The last hour lies hid.

When the old monks tolled the Angelus, this dial was half in gloom, and the evening hours were shrouded in shade. In a little village beyond Mentone we drew copy:

To the joyful the hours speed quickly, but to the afflicted they tarry and are slow.

A little farther on, neatled in a perfect Eden of nature, where little mountain fall babbled perpetually, and dew-sprinkled fern-bollows and blooming gardens and vine-olad slopes, running down into the liquid sapphing of a lasy bay, told all of summer gladness and peace, was a bell-tower having this inscription on its dial ;

Remember the last hour!

It was a peremptory admonition, and issuing from all this pomp of nature it set you a-musing like the sound of a far-off vesper

O Thou who seed two hours from one gno-mon, alas! wretched Man, thou knowest not that thou art about to die!

This I found near Coggoleto, Columbus's birthplace. I must leave the reader to get what meaning out of it be can. I confess it

Somewhere about here the following aphorism, reminding one of some pithy sentence from the Christian fashers, but in fact a bit out of an epigram of Martial, is

The hours slip by unheeded, but they are noted in the account against us.

As I stopped to find the time at another clace, the warning motto told me—

"Suprema multie hora forman tibi," The hour I looked at was

The last hour to many, possibly to thee. have lost note of the place where the an-

"Post tenebras spero lucem."
I hope for light after darkness. At Grasse I read-

Any hour is eacred for friends.

At Florence

My life is the own, Man's life is God, Without Him man is That which lacking the own I appear. Namely, of course, a blank. There, also, if memory serves me, is the following:

Quod petis umbra est.

What you seek is shadow! double-shotted conclusion fired point-blank at the interrogator.

Men's Favorites.

We often hear women speak with a certain curious disdain of one of themselves as a gentlemen's favorite; generally adding that gentlemen's favorites are never liked by their own sex, and giving you to understand that they are minxes rather than otherwise, and objectionable in proportion to their attracts. they are minxes rather than otherwise, and objectionable in proportion to their attractiveness. They never can understand why they should be so attractive, they say; and hold it as one of the unfathomable mysteries of men's bad taste—the girls to whom no man addresses half a dosen words in the course of the evening being far prettier and nicer than the favorite with whom every-body is talking, and for whom all are contending. Yet see how utterly they are neglected, while she is surrounded with admirers. But then she is an artful little flirt, they say, who lays herself out to attract, lected, while she is surrounded with admirers. But then she is an artful little flirt, they say, who lays herself out to attract, while the others are content to stay quietly in the shade until they are sought. And they speak as if to attract men's admiration was a sin, and not one of the final causes of woman as well as one of her chief social duties. There is always war between the women who are gentlemen's favorites and those who are not; and if the last dislike the first, the first despise the last, and go out of their way to provoke them; a thing not difficult to do when a woman gives her mind to it. A gentleman's favorite is generally attacked on the score of her morality, not to speak of her manners, which are pronounced as bad as can be; while, how pretty soever men may think her, her own sex decry her, and pick her to pieces with such effect that they do not leave her a single charm. She is assumed to be incapable of anything like real earnestness of feeling, of anything like true womanliness; to be ignorant of the higher rules of modesty, to be fast or aly, according to her apseciaty of style; and if you listen to her dissector you will find in time that she has every fault incidental to a finil humanity, while her noblest virtue is in all probability a "kind of good-nature" which does not count for much.

Women are quite right in one thing, hard all probability a "kind of good-nature" which does not count for much.

Women are quite right in one thing, hard as it seems to say it. Gentlemen's favorites, whom women dislike and distrust, are not usually good for much merally. They are often false and insincere, superficial, and possibly with a very low aim in life. And the men know all this, but forgive it for the asks of the pleasantness which is the grace possibly with a very low aim in life. And the men know all this, but forgive it for the sake of the pleasantness which is the grace and charm that shadows, or rather brightens, all the rest; having oftentimes indeed a half-contemptuous tolerance of their sins, as not expecting anything better from them. Grant that they are false, that they sail perilously near the wind, are shifty and untrustworthy, what of that? They are not favorites because of their good qualities, only because of their pleasant ones—that subtle je ne suis quoi of old writers which stands one in such good stead when one is at a loss for an analysis, and which is the only term that expresses the strong, yet indefinite charm which certain women possess for men. It is not beauty; it is not necessarily cleverness taken in the sense of education, though it must be a keenness if not depth of intellect, and smartness if not the power of reasoning; it certainly is not goodness; it is not always youth, nor yet warmth of feeling, though all these things come in as characteristics in their turn; but it is companionship and the power of amusing. ness; it is not always youth, nor yet warmtn of feeling, though all these things come in as characteristics in their turn; but it is companionship and the power of amusing. Still, what is it that creates this power, this companionship? A smart, pert, flippant little minx, as women call her, with a shrill voice and a sauqy air, may be the gentlemen's favorite of one set; a refined, graceful womas, speaking softly, and with pleading eyes, may be the favorite of another; a third may be a blunt, off-handed young person, given to speaking her mind so that there shall be no mistake; a fourth may be a silent and seemingly a shy woman, fond of sitting out in retired places, and with a reputation for fliring of a quiet kind that sets the women's flugers tingling. There is not settled rule anyhow, and all kinds have their special sphere of shining, according to circumstances. But whatever they may be, they are useful in their generation and valuable for such work as they have to do. Society is a miserably dull affair to men where there are no favorites of any sort; where the woman-hood in the room is of the kind that herds miserably duit attait to men where there woman-hood in the room is of the kind that herds together as if for protection, and looks askance over its shoulder at the wolves who prowl about the sheepfold of crinoline, in coats and beards; where conversation is monopyllable in form, and restricted in subwho answer immoral; where the marrons are grim, and the maidens still in the bread-and-butter stage of existence; and where young wives take matrimoulal fidelity to mean making themselves disagreeable to every man but their husband, on the plea that one never knows what may hap and that you cannot go on with what never begin.

It is not every lover that does as the lover of Miss Ruth Dinsmore did, in Whitely County, Indiana. The lover of Miss Ruth Dinsmore went to California, made $60,000, and, loving Miss Ruth Dinsmore excessivement, left the whole sixty to her.

DEPTON WOOD. BY JEAN INGELOW.

I held my way through Defton Wood,
And on to Wander Hall;
The descring leaf let down the light,
In hevering spots to fall.
"O young, young leaves, you match me well,"
My heart was merry, and sung...
"Now wish me joy of my sweet youth;
My love she, tee, is young!
O, so many, many, many Little homes above my head!
O, so many, many, many Daccing bloesoms round me spread!
O, so many, many, many Maidens sighing yet for none!
Speed, ye wooers, apeed with any...
Speed with all but one."

I took my leave of Wandor Hall,
And trod the woodland ways.
"What shall I do so long to bear
The burden of my days?"
I sighed my heart isto the boughs Whereby the culvers cooed;
For only I between them went Unwooing and unwooed.

nwooing and unwoodd.

O, so many, many, many Lilies bending stately heads! O, so many, many, many Strawberries ripened on their beds? O, so many, many, many Maids, and yet my heart undone? What to me are all, or any?
I have lost my—one.

Tom's Education.

[We have been intending for rome time past to write an article showing the folly of three-fourths of what is so highly eulogized as "Education." And now here comes along an article in Chambors's (London) Journal doing up a part of the business to our hand, and better than we could have done it. This shows the wisdom of never doing to-day what can be put off till to-morrow.— Editor Saturday Evening Post.)

We had a small party at Housewife's the other night—the Professor being invited to deliver his views upon education with respect to Housewife's son and heir, of whom I have the honor to be godfather.

It was, in fact, a sort of family council, with a Professional to assist at it; and the council-table was Housewife's well-furnished mahogany. Housewife, calm and smiling, though inwardly deeply interested in the fiat of the Professor; our hostess nervous, but even kinder in her manner than usual, because, her boy was in her mind; myself amused and interested; and, Professor Pussleton unexpectedly tremendous. The Chateau Yquem had opened his heart, and made him as frank as the morn. I never heard se much truth in my life from any constituted authority.

"As to Tom's going to school, my friends," observed he, cheerfully, "there is plenty of time before the young genleman: he is but

And a half," interposed Mrs. Housewife, with importance.
"Rising eight," remarked her busband, affecting to treat the matter with jocu-

"In such a case, the fraction may be disregarded, continued to Profesor, with waive of his hand, and a momentary return to his glass-of-water manner "let us hope, before he gets much older, that the bubble of Education may have burst."

If a shell had burst immediately beneath the dinner-table, it could scarcely have produced a greater consternation than this re-idol, in the expectation that he will return it to them four-fold; and in nineteen cases out of twenty, he never returns to them one brass farthing."

"One brass farthing," ejaculated the host; "why, good heavens! there have been thousands of pounds, then, thrown away upon me at school and college! My good father told me that a good education was all he could give me, and how he pinched and tolled told me that a good education was all he could give me, and how he pinched and tolled to compass it, poor soul!"

"Of course," replied the Professor, quietly, "a good education was his fetich; your patrimony was sacrificed to Mumbo Jumbo. It is only by the aid of such superstition—and its own rottenness—that the system is kept affect. The proportions of the Imposture are so gigantic that they affect honest simple folk with veneration, like some soulptured deity in Elephanta. Look at the prices: two hundred and fifty pounds a year for a child at Eton; two hundred at Harrow; a hundred and fifty pounds at Rugby! There are more than fifteen hundred boys at those three schools—many of them maintained there with extreme difficulty. How many of their fathers, think you, will ever see their money back? I can tell you to a nicety. Thirty-seven and a balf, air, exactly. That is the proportion of those boys who obtain fellowships at the university."

"But in other ways?" pleaded Housewife. "There is no other way, sir, by which a classical education can enable a lad to recoup himself. Scholarships are mere nothings. They are the insignificant primes by which the conductors of this buge lottery lure the public into their toils; the fortunate drawers get a little back of their own money, and that is all."

"Well, I didn't get a scholarship myself," mate, "said the Professor, eyeing bim keenly.

"The proportion of those who come from the public schools with any real philological"—

"I don't know exactly what you meen by the roots," interposed Housewife, peevishly.

"It was your own expression, my good sir, not mine. I am quite sure you don't know what you mean by it; and the possession of "the tone" ought, I think—if you will forgive me for saying so—to have prevented you implying that you did. There is a certain magnanimity in your attempted defence of a system under which you have sufferred pillage, which I admire. 'Never foul your ewn nest,' is a homely British provert which has proved the bulwark of many a rotten institution. In consequence of it, the assault has always to be made by outsiders, who, of course, contend at a disadvantaga."

"You are an outsider yourself," observed Housewife, grimly.

"If you mean anything, my good ut, by

"You are an outsider yourself," observed Housewife, grimly.

"If you mean anything, my good wir, by that observation," said the Professor quietly, "you mean to imply that my parents were not rich enough to send me to Eton. Your observation is just. My education cost me altogether—I was brought up at a free school in Scotland—about six-and-thirty pounds."

"And yet you know everything!" ejaculated Mrs. Housewife with astonishment.

"I balieve I know everything, madam.

"And yet you know everything!" ejaculated Mrs. Housewife with astonishment.

"I believe I know everything, madam, except heraldry," observed the Professor modestly; "and that I don't want to know. The simple fact is, that no man learns anything who will not teach himself. Now, to give the devil his due, the whole system of classical education is built upon the idea that it will enable persons to do this. I don't say whether that idea is right or wrong; what I do affirm is, that not one boy out of twenty is the least likely to avail himself of such an advantage. Not one boy out of twenty leaves a public school with any real knowledge of the subject on which he has wasted his time, and his father his money. To the multitude, Greek and Latin will always be caviars; the study of grammar is loatheome to a healthy mind; and as for the attractive force of the beauties of classical literature, I am certain that, If an introduction to Shakspeare himself was to reward his exertions, it would not excite the ordinary boy one whit. What do you know, my good sir, for instance, or care, about Plato or Æschylus? Even of Horsoe, what is left to you, after all your father's mistaken pains on your behalf, but a few stale quotations?"

Our host was silent; tickling the knobs of ice in the tumbler with his straw.

quotations?"
Our host was silent; tickling the knobs of ice in the tumbler with his straw.
"I am sure my husband would never have had such gentlemanly manners unless be had been at Eton," said Mrs. Housewife region translate into: "You had better repair to the drawing-room, my dear, for Fussieton is drank."

"I am quite aware of what I said," resulted the Professor with dignity. "I have long entertained the impression, without giving it utterance; but your hospitality has been such as to render silence beneath a crime; I cannot deceive you; I cannot doom that innocent boy of yours to suffer years of arrita and middle-voice; oh, my goodness, what confounded rubbish it all is!" exclaimed the Professor, moping bit face with the napkin, and puffing as though he would have blown the Greek Crammar into space. It was evident that the honest fellow was upon the rack of conactence, and could zot choose but speak.

"You are speaking, of course, with reference to classical education only," suggested Housewife, which was the surface with the size of a man who cannot believe his own of "Professor composited," are not professor to my middle roles are to my middle roles you been fool enough to send him there, about two thousand pounds. He will rea-correctly, and therefore with pleasure to himself; he will write so that his friends can decipher his meaning at a glance; and he will understand the Rule of Three. How many, think you, of our expensively brought up acquaintances are masters of those three up acquaintances are masters of those three simple arts?"

"Why, I have learned the Rule of Three myself?" exclaimed Mrs. Housewife.

The Professor amiled good-naturedly. "It is quite possible, dear madam. There are about three women in all England who understand the theory of proportion, and I do not say but that you may be one of them. But you do not understand it now? Just so, It was taught you at school, you will say, and you have forgotten it. You are mistaken; it is impossible—at a girls' school—to be taught it. If there is a greater imposture than our system of education for young gentlemen, it is that in vogue for our young ladies."

"But what are we to do with our Tom?

young ladies."
"But what are we to do with our Tom?
If we are not to send him to school, where are we to send him? What are we to do with him till be grows up?"
"The grows up?"

maid Housewife, modestly; "but I always understood it was a great assistance to a lad. Sixty pounds a year is a nice little sum" Tee; especially when you have subscribed one hundred and fifty pounds per ansum for ten years for the chance of getting it. Now, what did you get, my dear sir, out of this well-meant legacy of your excellent parent—out of this first-rate education for which he paid such a fancy price?"

"Well, what would you do with a Master Thomas Puzzleton?" asked Housewife. "Come."

"I had a son of my own, I should fix upon some pursuit for his future, and adapt him for it from the first hy all means in my power. But he should be troobled with no other sert of work, under he liked it. (I am speaking of the average boy, who does not like it, and who has no particular bent of mind.) The literature of his own country would be always open to him, because he would have the key of it; and if that did not interest bim, I am sure the treasures of antiquity would in vain be spread before bim. We cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear, but we may spare ourselves the attempt to carry on that species of manufacture. In the case of a son of mine, he would have to gain his own livelihood, and I could not afford to see him as helpless to do that at the end of his curriculum (even if it had oce the mothing; and I could not afford to see him as helpless to do that at the end of his curriculum (even if it had oce the mothing as at the beginning, which was your case, I fancy, my good sir. You did not find yourself adapted for anything in particular, I believe, when your father's legacy had been paid in full?"

Our host shook his head and shrugged his shoulders.

"But how, then, did you make your heaps"

"But how, then, did you make your heaps of money, Housewife?" inquired I with inof money, Housewife?" inquired I with interest.

"My dear husband was fortunate in his business speculations," interposed the hostess hastily.

"I drew a great prise in the matrimonial lottery," said Housewife smiling.

"It is easy to see that," observed the Professor with gallantry, and quaffing a bumper of Lafitle. "May your Tom be as fortunate." But our hostess was not to be so easily conditiated. She believed in public schools, and perhaps did not like them the less because they were expensive.

"I think our Tem will go to Eton, Professor," said she slowly, "after all."

"I have no doubt he will, my dear madam, since his mother wishes it. There are two strongholds in possession of the ruling educational powers. They have all the ladies with them; and the clergy are bound to the same side by their own interests, since half the parsons are also schoolmasters. It is very difficult for intelligence to get fair-play against such opposents."

It was plain that the Professor's back was very difficult for intelligence to get fair-play against such opponents."

It was plain that the Professor's back was up; our host supplied him on the instant with a huge cigar, with the double purpose of mitigating his wrath and procuring the absence of his antagonist.

Mrs. Housewife rose with dignity. "We are very much obliged to you, Professor, for your kind advice," said she. "So reading, writing, and arithmetic are all that is necessary for a young gentleman's education The rest is nought but leather and prunella." nella."
"I did not say anything of the sort, madam."

"You said that anything more was useless

"You said that anything more was useless to the ordinary boy."

"Just so; and, I added, most exorbitantly charged for."

"And suppose this Tem of yours—for mine will learn Greek and Latin like a gentieman—should refuse to study even 'the three Rs.' What would you do then?"

"I should teach him the Use of the Globe, madam, by sending him to a sheep-farm in Australia. And I'd teach him one more thing," added the Professor, as the door closed behind our hostess, "which I was an old fool not to have taught myself."

"What is that?" asked Housewife, who, with myself, had been enjoying beyond measure the late passage of arms.

"Never to argue with a woman," said Puzzleton sententiously.

"It is the school of matrimony that teaches that," a sewered Housewife dryly." Pass the claret."

3. When a storm is imminent, the precipitate will rise to the top of the tube, assuming the shape of a leaf, or an assemblage of crystals: the liquid will appear to be in a state of effervoscence. This change very often takes place twenty-four hours before the change in the weather.

4. The side from which the wind will blow in a squall will be also indicated by the particles of the substance floating in the liquid, and assuming the shape of long halry needles.

airy needles.

5. In the summer time, the weather being warm and dry, the crystalisation will have a tendency to remain lower in the tube, and the liquid will also be more transparent. The amount of csystalized particles that will be seen floating in the liquid will be a sure sign or indication of fine or bad weather, sure sign or indication of fine or bad weather, and will depend entirely upon the suddenness of the change in the weather which is to take place, acting in the most energetic way on the composition above described.

The value of this simple instrument to forewarn of an impending storm, and also to indicate the continuance of fine weather, will be readily appreciated by those whose occupations are affected in the change of the weather.

Model Matrimonial Advertisement.

Face intellectual,
Color and tone,
All the accessories
Biriotly home-grown.
Ryes—here I hesitate—
Rather like blue,
Black not an obstacle,
Hasel would do,
Nose of the Gracian type—
Not to seem proud,
Some little latitude
Therein allowed,
Pigure that's squeezable, Pigure that's squeezable, Plump, but not fat, Steers clear of soragginess, Couldn't stand that. Couldn't stand that.
Quirt and lady-like,
Dresses with taste,
Ankle displayable,
Neat little waist.
Sphere of home-duties her Element quite,
Pie-crust especially Warranted light.
Common accomplishments. Common accomplishments
But, in a word,
Those of the useful kind Those of the useful kind Greatly preferred. Little bit musical, Able to sing, Claribel, Gabriel, That sort of thing. Chatty and sociable, Likes a cigar, Pleasant old people, pa-Pa and mamma. Pious. devotional.

Pa and mamma.
Pious, devotional, Gentie and hind;
Teach in the Sunday-se
If she's a mind.
Lady of such a stamp Wanting a bean,
Strictly in confidence,
Knows where us go. (Here follow name and residence in full ) P. S.—Applicant penniless, Ditto with tin,

The Old Bureau,

It is one of those smug, oney little rooms, spotless in cleanliness, and faultless in comfort, immortalised by Washington Irving in his description of the Dutoh settlements in North America. The floor is polished like a mirror; the tasteful green and white paper (which looks delightfully fresh this mitry weather) seems as fresh as the day it was put on; white the broad, well-stuffed softa, which takes up nearly one whole side of the room, seems just made for the brawny beamends of some portly German burgher, or the realiess roly-poly limbs of his half-dosen big babies. Above the chimney-piace (along which stand the usual china shepherdessea, "Presents from Dreaden," and busts of Gosthe and Schiller) hangs a staring, highly-colored medley of fire, smoke, blue and white uniforms, rearing horses, and overturned cannon, which some crabbed Tentonic letters beneath it proclaim to be "Die Schlacht bei Koniggrats, I Juli, 1866;" while facing it from above the sofa is a rather neatly-done water-color likeness of a chubby, fair-haired lad, in an infantry uniform, whom I rightly guess to be my host's soldier-son Wilhelm (a household werd in his father's mouth), now on garrison duty at Spandan.

But the object which specially attracts my his father's mouth), now on garrison duty at Spandan.

But the object which specially attracts my attention is a tail, grim bureau of dark eak in the farther corner beyond the fire-place, decorated with those quaint old German carvings which carry one back to the streets of Nuremberg and the house of Albrecht Durer. There stand Adam and Eve in all their untrammeled freedom, shoulder to shoulder, like officers in the centre of a hollow square, with all the beasts of the earth formed in close order around them, and the Tree of Knowledge standing up like a sign-post in the rear. There the huge frame of Goliath, smitten by the fatal stone, reels over like a falling tower, threatening to orush into powder the ewarm of diminutive Philiatines who as a hopping about in the back ground. There appear the chosen Twelve, with faces curiously individualized, in spite of all the roughness of the carving, and passing through every gradation, from the softs womanly features of the beloved in spite of all the roughness of the carving, and passing through every gradation, from the soft womanly features of the beloved disciple to the bearded, low-browed, rufflanly visage of him "which also was the traitor." And there the persecutor Saul, not yet transformed into Paul the Apostic (sheathed in steel from top to toe, armed with a sabre that might have suited Bluebeard himself, and attended by a squadron of troopers armed capa-pie), rides at full gallop past the gates of Damascus on his erand of destruction.

"That bureau must be a very old one," remark I attentively.

"That bureau must be a very out one, remark I attentively.
"It is indeed—but that's not why we value it," answers the old man with kindling eyes.
"That bureau is the most precious thing we have; and there's a stery attached to it, which will never be forgotten in our family, "It asswar for it. I'll answer for it.

"You must know, then, mein Herr, that in the year '52 business began to fall off rather with me (I was a cabinetmaker, you remember), and from bad it came to worse, remember), and from man it came to worse, till I thought something should really be done to put matters to rights. Now, just about this time, all manner of stories were beginning to go about of the high wages given to foreign workmen in Russia, and the given to foreign workmen in Russia, and the heaps of money that sundry Germans, who had gone there from Breslau and Konigaberg, and elsewhere, were making in St. Petersburg and Moscow. And so I pondered and pondered over a 1 these tales, and over the plight I was in, till at last I began to think of going and trying my luck as well as the rest. My wife and I talked it over, and settled that it should be done; and we were just getting ready to start, when one night a message came that my old uncle, Ludwig Holzmann of the Friedrich-Strasse, (who had taken offence at my marriage, and never looked near me since) was dying, and wanted looked near me since) was dying, and wanted to see me immediately. So away I went (my wife wanted to come too; but I thought she had better not); and when I got there, I found the old man lying in a kind of doze, and nobody with him but the doctor and the and there wise extreme discourt. How many of their fathers, think you, will ever ee their money back? I can tell you to nicety. Thirty-seven and a balf, air, expect to an interpretation of those boys the obtain fellowships at the university."

"But in other ways?" pleaded Housewife. "Their is no other way, sir, by which are is no other way, sir, by which are income of a lot of boys in the house. It his to be asved personal bother, and the noise of a lot of boys in the house. It was to meet this exigency that 'education' was invested. School saves the father trought from the conductors of this buge lottery are the public into their toils; the fortunate rewers get a little back of their own money, and their own money, and they conductor of the back of their own money, and they can be an object to start the force of the way are the public into their toils; the fortunate rewers get a little back of their own money, and they conductor of the back of their own money, and they can be an object to start the foot of the whole matter, which lies at the root of the whole matter, which lies at the root of the whole matter, which lies at the root of the whole matter, which lies at the root of the whole matter, and the nother ways if it found the old man lying in a kind of dure, and nobody with him but the doctor and the Scotch gentleman was asked if he thought the hexameter would take root in English with the beaven to will lit ask measure that suits all themes. It will lit is a measure that suits all themes. It will lit is a measure that suits all themes. It is a measure that suits all thou'lt have their bureau yonder; there's were in it done they think'ed. And he sank bank with a sort of obehing laugh, that twisted his face horribly. Those were his lest words; for after that, he fall into a hind of stupor, and died the same night.

When his property came to be divided, every one was carprised; for they had all thought him much richer. I got the hereau, just as he said; and, remembering his words about it, we ranached all the drawers from each to end; but found sothing except two or three old letters and a roil of isohore; or we made up our minds that he muse either here been wachering a little, or size that (Got forgive him;) he had wanted to play us one more irich telfore he died. In a few weeks more, all was ready for our going, and away we went to St. Pelessburg.

"When we got there we found it not all such a hand of promise as the stories made it out; but still there sery good wages for those who could work, and for the first year or two we god out well enesyl. Ena after a time, in came is high of Farent fellows, with new-langied tricks of, carving that pleased the Rassida gosity, more than our plain German fashions; and trade began to get dieck, and money to run short. Alt mein Herr, may you never feel what it is to find yourself sinking always lower and lower, work as hard as you like, and one trouble coming or you after another, till is seems as if God had forgotten you?"

The old herr's woice quivored with smoothes, and an unwonted tremor disturbed the placed countenance of his wife, while even the samp face of the Hittle Fraulein looked strang, by end.

"Well, mein Herr, we struggled on in this way for two years longer, hoping always land our head whom we could stand against is no longer. The old herr's woice quive and when we could stand against is no longer. There was a money-lender due by us, from whom we had bureous of his wife, while even he had his our hands have a money-lender due by the head of the had not a feet a slight pause he sumed than a sub our a near of the his own a as we were in this uttermost strait by a kind of miracle; and how we blossed the name of my old uncle, when we saw how truly he had spoken. The inspector (God bless him!) refused to touch a pfernig of the windfall, saying that he was sufficiently rewarded by secing so many good people made happy; so we paid our debta, packed up all that we had, and came back to our own folk and our own fatherland, never to leave it again. Ay mein Herr, we have indeed been fully helped."

And, almost unconsciously, the old man broke into the opening words of Luther's grand old psalm—the asms which the pious soldiers of Frederick the Great chanted in the bleak December morning when they went forth, one man against three, to turn to thick the armies of the sites. to flight the armies of the alien:

"A tower of strength our God doth stand, A trusty shield and weapon,"

Too deeply interested to break, by further Too deeply interested to break, by further conversation, the charm of this noble ro-mance of real life, I took my leave, and (except a hasty farewell visit two days later, never saw the Holzmann family again; but the story which they left me I have not for gotten, and can never forget.

WASTING OTHER PROPLE'S TIME -A committee of eight gentlemen pointment to meet at 12 o'clock. pointment to meet at 12 o'clock. Seven of them were punctual, but the eighth came bustling in with apologies for being a quarter of an hour behind time. "The time," said he, "passed away without my being aware of it. I had no idea of its being so late," etc. A Quaker present said, "I am not sure that we should spirit the reuse. It were that we should admit thy excuse. It were a matter of regret that thou shouldst have wasted thine own quarter of an hour; but there are seven besides thyself, whose time then hast also consumed, amounting in the whole to two hours, and one-eighth of it only was thine own property."

Generally speaking-Women.

$ 60 E

Glen Iris.

FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

DRAR MR. EDITOR:—I want to write you a letter about some of the places I have seen this commer, and haply my words may tempt some of your readers to leave the weary words of the city, to put by their dusty largers and come and read the day-hook of Nature as it is unfolded in central book of Nature as it is amount in comNew York.

Nice last I was in your city I have been to "Gien Iria." Do you ask where it is?
Geography locates it is Portage, between Wyeming and Livingston counties, New York state. I place it in Paradise, for cartainly no E len could be fairer, no happiness more no E len could be Tairer, no happiness more complete, no life more joyons than was mine white in this wondrons vailey. We left Buffalo at 8 20 and travelled on the Erie road to this beautiful spot. This road has the most commodione cars, makes the best speed, and is more plentifully supplied with dust and cinders than any in this part of the country. You have rome difficulty to decide to what race you belong, after having travelled far; but any unbiased judge would soon settle the effactor with the deciden that you were surely an African, all your stateyou were surely an African, all your states ments to the contrary notwithstanding. You soon forget all this as you are whirled through soon forget all this as you are whirled through the Wyoming Valley—gentle slopes orowned with verture, hills blue and misty in the dim distance—little villages in their bath of morning samight, looking so contented in their homes in "Sleepy Hollow," till one could almost believe with Rose Terry, that

" Mountain grapes, low and sweet, Grow in the middle of every street."

Grow in the middle of every street."

Soon the scene grows more wild, the hillrise grim and dark, we hear the rush of water, and some one sys, "We are on the Great Portage Bridge." Here we leave the care. Could you but see this hridge! It is built of treasle work, each piece of wood being so arranged that it could be taken out without disturbing the rest; here it towers above the Upper Palls of the Genesce, three hundred and eight feet high; the highest wooden bridge in the world. The white sprax of the waterfull rises an close to it, that its lower portion is seen as through a veil, and the eye never tires of beholding this wonder of art spanning the wonders of nature.

mature.

We went down the many steps that lead to the level of the river, and here looked up at this wonderful bridge, with the cataract fretting its life away at the base. If my words could but tell you of the effect—the gli-tening water, the soft spray, bathed in the warm, sunny air, made the bridge seem like some great phantom guarding the flowing river.

ing river.

Nome of the party took the carriage here, but we, a balf-dozen in number, walked by the river road. Soon we were in a quiet, lenfy glade, where our feet kept time to the lenty glade, where our feet kept time to the munic of the waterfall; high above us the aky serene; the birds singing in the top-most branches of the trees; beceath us the damp, rich mould, whose odor mingled with that of "the green things growing," stole upon our senses, fresh and sweet. Anon, the air would be musical with the glad shout of some little essends leaping, hurrying down the hill-side, filled with the ever restless desire to reach the bright world of which it catches but a glimpse through the trees. A cleft in the recks is spanned by a trees. A cleft in the recks is spanned by a rustic bridge, where we pause to rest and serjoy. The children bring us delicate ferms, and tell us, in their sweet way, of new beauties they have seen.

With our souls attuned to nature, with every grief, every care far away in the background, we walk dreamity along, only conscious "that blue and green are glad together."

Only light and love and happiness are yours—the wealth of nature about you, and the wealth of life within you, gives to your cheek a rose-tim, and a brighter fue to your wind-blown hair. Life is so sweet, so radiat t, alas! that we must have winter time as t, also? that we must have winter time. We crose a stille and reach the road, and our eyes set the finest view of "Glen Iris." There this beautiful home stands, on the brow of a hill, overlooking the Middle Fall of the Genesse. This Fall is one hundred and ten feet high, and all day long you can hear its sone of welcome, or watch the changing shadows falling on its uplifted face. The home overstream with view is changing shadows falling on its uplifted face. The house, overgrown with vines, is a picture in itself. It is half ancient, half modern, rambling and dreamy like our thought. As we wander through it, no dazzling colors off-not the eye, only soft, shadowy tints that lose themselves in pale blue or delicate green borders, as twilight is lost in the quiet arms of night. Bare old pictures adont the walls; in the library books he ready to amuse or instruct; from the window you see the Upper Fall, she bridge, the hill-tops smiling down upon you—every sense is smiling down upon you—every sense is gratified, and contentment is perfect. This re idence, and the country for several miles erou d, is owned by a gentleman from Buf falo, who had invited us to be his guesta. He is a prince among hoots, and his home a palace of happiness. You cannot stay long indoors, for cutside the fuliness of anumer woos you-ber enchanted breath has be witched you; you lie on the "hill-ide's aloping shoulder," and the very air breather portry as it passes. Your

" The splendor falls on castle wall. And snowy summits old in story; he long light snakes across the lakes, And the wild cataract leaps in glory.

After some hours of rest, you leave all this for a ride to the Lower Fall about a mile distant. After leaving the carriage, you find your way down rocky steeps, through a great dim wouds—whose paths but a few years ago were trod by the fearless Indian—then down a long flight of steeps, through a woods more dense than before, and out on a rocky ledge, where you get a view of the Lower Falls of the Genessee. You have no woods as its grandow breaks. You have no words as its grandeur breaks on your sight; your soul is filed with more than wonder; you are more alone than ever than women; your before, and involuntarily your thoughts rise with reverential awe to that Creator who holds this subtime beauty as His footstool.

with reverential awe to that Creator who holds this subtime beauty as His footstool. With your whole nature elevated and refreshed, and your soul clad in new armor to fight the battle of life—you come back to the world and its works—better, nobler, from this brief taste of Heaven.

Glen Iris, oh, Glen Iris! The world may toll and suffer, The quiet knows it not.

No breath of sorrow comes to thee, No tears, no dream of pain— Only the sweet, sweet summer time, The water's glad refrain. Though other lands upon my sight May dawn with beauty rare, No scenes can ever break the spell That holds my memory there.

Though life may lose its brightness, And age may dim my sight. If thought of thee but some to me, All griefs must take their flight.

Oh, love'y, lovely valley!
No words of mine can tell
The thoughts that neetle in my heart:
All language fails. Farewell!
ANNIE MORRIS.

The French and German Soldiery.

The French and German Boldiery.

The Rev. Dr. O-good says:—

"A year ago to-day, I went from Paris to Cologue by railroad, and looked, for the first time upon the Rhise. It was a very hot day, but there was no trouble en the line, except the rudeness of three or four young French swells, who got loto our car near the Belgian border, and filled it with their nasty tobacco smoke, without asking leave. To-day things probably look quite otherwise—and that whole lone of communication must be swarming with the mescengers of war. King William, of Prussia, the morning telegram says, is to-day at Cologue; and those regiments of horses that went every morning by our hotel, on their way to their dillground, move with quicker step. There, houseer, as ecceyachere through Germany, the traceller saw the preparations for war. I met the soldiers constantly in their marches and exercise, and it seemed strange that the air should small so much of war at a time of entire peace. The Government undoubtedly saw the coming storm, and looked upon the war with France as a question only of time. The Prussian soldiers are a very solid, hardy as to fine, and look as if they would stand their ground against any enemy. They have nothing of the jaunty, dashing air of the Boglish troops, nor the restiess, electric style of the French; but they give more the impression of a positive individual manboud than either. I must a large body of French soldiers at Rouen, in July, the day after I landed in France, and examined them carry with them the appearance of calm, settled military loyalty such as marks the English or American, or German soldier. The French officers had more the air of society and the world than the German, and the young man who commanded at Honen as the morning roll-call was a person of great elegance and apparent refluement and culture, whose deinate lips might fitly read an ensay or even a prayer, as well as speak the word of command. What impressed me most of all, deneate lips might fitly read an emay or even a prayer, as well as speak the word of command. What impre-sed me most of all, however, was the French drum-beat, from however, was the French drum-best, from that score of drums shaped like great cheeses. Mars and Bellons! what a rattle and a ring! How thundering, yet how waspish! What power and what spite! It seemed to me that I had never beard the voice of war before; and this fierce sound is now to wake up the more fearful din of the musket and cannon upon that beautiful Rhune, along whose charmed banks! floated from Bonn, Beethovan's home, to Mayonce, this very week of July, last summer, among scenes and associations that seemed to breathe that great Master's symphonies into our souls."—New York Keening Post,

NOTICE OF WITHDRAWAL.—A correspondent of Le Temps thus describes the interview between the French Minister and Antonelli, on July 27. The former having read the Duke de Grammont's despatch direct-ing the evacuation of the Roman State by the French troops, Antonelli said, impetthe French troops, Antonelli said, impetuously—"I will mention it to the Holy Fa-

The Minister-" Then I may expect an an Autono.ii—"I shall receive you with plea

In the evening the Minister called on the Cardinal, and the following brief colloquy Minister De Benneville... What does his Holiness say?'

Antonelli—"He says, 'God will provide for me, May I never see French troops arsin,'"

again."

De Benneville—"Is that all?"

Autonelli—"All."

THE foot of Mise Chang Lung, of San Francisco, is thus written about by a gentle-man of that city:—"Welking along Dupont street lately, I saw a Chinese lady at her toilette, and, though the sight was no novelty, as she was going to bathe her feet, curiosity impelled me to stop and try to catch a gluspes of them. A foot three incless in length is the idol of a Cuinaman, on which he will lavish every epithet nature and langether ideal; for as the woman unwound the bandages a piteous mass of lifetess in-tegrment revesled itself, resembling the akin of a washer-coman's hand after it has undergone a long maceration with soas and water. Thus my mentality lost another

Most people have a curiosity to know ! it feels to be sunstruck, though very few would care to learn by pursonal experience. A Lawrence, Kansas, cottor, who was over-come by Old Sol, while conversing with a friend in his gardee, describes the brief sensation with professional exactness. He says that he had been perspiring very profusely, and while talking the perspiration suddenly caused, and he felt a dry, parching sensation all over his body. He was remarking to his visitor that he would have to seek the shade, visitor that he would have to seek the shade, when it appeared to him as if some one hat struck him a severe blow on the head. He then became insensible, and was taken to the house. Applications of icewater were freely made to his head, and respiration gotton up by the use of ammonis, and in a few hours he was again able to get about. The prostration accompanying the attack, however, did not leave him for several days.

BARBATH AT ALL TIMES -Br differ BABBATH AT ALL TIMES.—By different nations avery day in the week is set spart for public worship—Sunday, by the Coristians; Monday, by the Greeks; Tuesday, by the Persians; Wednasday, by the Asyrians; Thursday, by the Egyptians; Friday, by the Turks; and Saturday, by the Jews. And to this the fact of the diurnal gravitation of the safety lightly experience. revolution of the earth, giving every varia-tion of longitude a different hour, and it beent that every moment is a San day somewhere,

A DOUBTPUL COMPLIMENT, -One of our co-temporaries pays a doubtful compli-ment to a prominent crizee, by referring to a generous act under the heading, "Charity covers a multitude of sins," THE WARNING BY THE WAY.

PROM THE LONDON PUNCH.

We poise our balanced periods; we point out obvious marsis;

Ring the familiar changes on the horror of armed quarrels;
Rub up our tarnished metaphers—the bolt out of the blue—
The avalanche brought down by a word—the dyke by a stroke cut through!

Trot out the old abstractions—Justice and Mercy flying;
Humanity called from its work to attend the maimed and dying;
Industry, ill-used giant, beating ploughshares into swords;
Peace and Progress trampled underfoot beneath War's hurrying hordes.

Until we come to realize the huge and hideous fact—
Two million cuetly soldiers attacking and attacked!

's two master races, the Tenton and the Gaul, Must'ring for the death-grapple to the shattering trumpet-call.

Before such grim reality our rhetoric valls Our loade-t preachers feel at heart that silence fitteth best:

We pack up our stale maxims, push our periods anids, Leave our abstractions on their pegs, our And bow before the inscrutable, and do our best to hold Our minds in even balance 'twixt new loves and batreds old, Painfully to weigh causes, and trace fruits back to their seed,

In Napoleon's hopes and fears or in Prussia's

Hard to hold even temper! To resist the German blood,

Which bests and bounds within us in a fever-heated fleod,
At the words of weight and wisdom, the appeals to God above, That e'ou the slow brain of Berlin to patriot passion move.

Hard to record the wrath we felt on Duppel's shameful day,

When overmatched at Prussia's feet robbed
Denmark bleeding lay!
Before this blaze of brotherhood that, as fire bids metals run, Fuses North Germany and South, and East, and West, in one.

Hard not to feel the ancient grudge across our judgments come,
That has now for centuries rankled 'twixt
John Bull and Jacques Bonhomme: Hard not to see the blood-stains that will keep soaking through

The pages of our annais from Creey to Waterloo.

Hard not to think of him who made French Empire once so wide; Whose red star rose in Corsica, in St. Helena

Who reaped war's whirlwind harvest, as war's wind of woe he sowed.

And was dashed to death by the tempest which he loosed and once o'er-rode. Hard not to call up the shadow of the Uncle, grim and gray, With a hand upraised in warning across the With a nand upraised in warning across the Nephew's way! With eyes that look their lesson, lips that warn without a word— How they that draw the sword to smite shall perish by the sword.

Unlike the Uncle until now, in all but name of power,

Will the N-phew tempt the Uncle's fate—in this his evening bour?
Stand aside, grim, gray spectre, let bim pass on his way : Thou mean'st 'tis death for him to advancewhat is it, if he stay?

Think'st then he rides for pleasure this road to the battle-field. And the boy he loves beside him, with his father's heart for shield?

He does but ride, because he must; to bring the eagle prey, Lest, if he feed it not, from his boy it rend

He has rearmed a mighty army, for his boy And if that army murmur, he must find it

In the chances of the battle, the prizes of the strife, plunder, and promotion that gild the

Then stand saide! Thy warning may be well-meant, but behind Retreat is barred by spectres, as ghastly and

There's the Liberty he murdered; there are the Oaths be broke : France, that cries " GIVE ME CONQUEST, IF I MUST BEAR THE TOKE."

THE Gazette, of Augsburg, publishes lists of the prelates who voted either unconditionally (non-placet) or conditionally (placet justa modum) in the session of the 13th of justa modum) in the session of the 13th of July, at Rome, against the dogma of infallibility. The following are American prolates upon the lists:—

Pittsburg, Bishop Domenco.
Little Roca, Bishop Firgerald.
Rochester, Bishop MacQuaid.
St. Louis, Archoishop Kendrick.
New York, Archbishop McCloskey. New York, Archbishop McCloskey. Savannah, Bishop Verot. Oregon City, Archbishop Blanchet. Monterey, Bishop Amal.

IT The brothers of an Obio lady disap proving her marriage, abducted her the night after, bound her hand and foot and took her me. Her husband recovered her by Abbest corpus.

(2) The Bangor (M.) Whig says that two ladies in that neighborhood are seriously ill from the effects of vermin in jute switches, which they have been in the habit of wearing. The insects have penetrated the scalp in innumerable places, and fatal results are found.

Troy recently vaunted the good qualities of a newly-discovered mineral spring.

Now it has found out saidy that those qualities were owing to the drainage of a tanuery.

Did Poe Write the Raven? The following strange letter is published in The New Orleans Times:—

The New Orleans Times:—

New ORLEANS, July 22, 1870.

To the Editor of the New Orleans Times:—

I tuclose herewith some interesting extraces from a private letter, recently received by me from the Rev. J. Shaver, of Burlington, New Jersey, formerly a resident of this city. Comment on my part is unnecessary; and if you think it worth inserting in your releases invent on the private of the product of the comment of the product of the produ Your obedient servant, C. C. Macon.

PINE HIGHTS HERMITAGE, | BURLINGTON, July 2, 1870 | CLEMONT C. MACON, Feq., New Orleans, Le Dear Friend:—

because of some family quarrel about pro perty."

Having often heard that such documents existed in Burlington, and were in the hands of Mr. John T. Tompkins, I requested the such documents of the such as the such a hands of Mr. John T. Tompkins, I requested and obtained permission to examine them— and among them found and copied a portion of a letter from Edgar A. Poe to Mr. Daniels of Philadelphia, dated Richmond, Sept. 29, 1849, in which an admission is made that will, so a certain extent, upset that person's claim to the authorship of the "Raven." I could not make out all the writing on ac-count of its ag- and neglected condition, but what I could decipher was in these words:

but what I could decipher was in these words:

"Bhortly before the death of our good friend, Samuel Feewick, he seat to me from New York, for publication, a most beautiful and thrilling poem, which he called the 'Raven,' wishing ma, before printing it, to 'see if it had merit,' and to make any alterations that might appear necessary. So perfect was it in all its parts that the slightest improvement seemed to me impossible. But you knew a person very often depreciates his own talents, and he even went so far as to suggest that in this in-banes, or in any future pieces he might conwrbute, I should revise and print them in my own name to insure their circulation.

"This proposal I rejected, of course, and

"This proposal I rejected, of course, and one way or other delayed printing the 'Raven,' until, as you knew, it came out in The Review, and ——— It was published when I was, unfortunately, intoxicated, and not knowing what I did, I signed my name to it, and thus it went to the printer, and was published.

was published.
"The sensation it produced made me disreal author, who had died, as you know, some time before it came out, and by that means I now enjoy all the credit and applaues myself. I simply make this statement to you for the ——. I shall probably go to New York to-morrow, but will be back by Oct. 12th, I think."

As you are found of such matters, I send you the above as something interesting and important.

important,
1 am, as ever, your friend,
J. SHAVER.

[Note.-Perhaps if that old Dickerson · [Note.—Perhaps II that old Dickerson collection be examined intriber, letters may be discovered from John Milton admitting that his friend Elwood was the true author of "Paradise Lost," and from William Shakspeare stating who was the real author of "Hamlet," "Macbeth," &c. Also from Bryant, revealing that John Snooks wrote "Thanatopsis."—Ed. Sat. Ec. Post.]

Interesting Experiments.

Somebody is always discussing something new or developing half-understood facts. One of our exchanges gives, in a late issue, the result of several very interesting experiments made with a glass-mounted thermometer in testing the heat of the sun's rays. In the various tests made it was found that in the house with open windows the mercury stood at 90.20. Out of doors in the shade it stood at 90.20. Out of doors in the shade it stood at 95, and not quite five degrees nigher in the sum. In the same position, with wet bulb, it stood at 98.8; and with bulb covered with white cloth, 99.5; and with bulb cov-ered with black alls at 109.86. Land upon the grass in the sun is rose to 104; upon white cloth in the sun 105.8, and upon black sits 113.

These experiments show conclusively the utility of light-colored clothing for those who are obliged to be exposed to the direct rays of the sun at bigh temperatures—and the ex periment with the wet bulb shows clear; the value of free perspiration of the body which however, the observer fields in his own person, notwith-tanding a profuse perspira tion while making these experiment, to have risen to 100.7, which is about two degrees above the usual standard for cooler days. The average temperature of the healthy human body throughout the year, in temperate clim-tes, is 98.5, while in tropical regions it is about one degree higher.

STRANGE IF TRUE.—By a singular concidence a pair of egg merchants at in became poulterers on a large scale. The porter suddenly heard a noise in the store-room, where there were 60,000 duzen of eggs packed away preparatory to being shipped east, and on going to see what was the matter, found 720,000 chickens running about the floor. They bad been batched by the

CF The despotism of Berlin landlords is (2) The despotism of Berlin landlords is a terror toroughout Germany. The papers relate the death of a rich Berlin landlord a few days ago. He was unconscious, and his wife wared him to give some important directions before he died. In vain. At last a friend came in. Said he; "b'll make him speak. Friend," said he to the dying man, "what's to be done about the rents of the new house?" The landlord started, opened his eyes, uttered three words—"Raise the rent!"—and oned.

AN EXCELLENT SUGGESTION -A EF AN EXCELLENT SUGGESTION—An excellent suggestion is going the rounds of the press, that in order to distinguiss I from J in manuscript the public should acquire the habit of putting under c-pital 1, in writing it, the telegraphic character which represents that letter, simply two dots, thus . by which it would be recognized both by telegraphic operators and type-setters. It is further arged that this practice be taught by instructors in penmanship and achoof teachers. An Interview with him in his Retire-

Some months ago, says the Boston Journal, the Boston Lyceum Bureau commissioned a celebrated lecturer to travel through Europe until be found Kossuth, and, as it was reported that he was poor, to offer him a series of increative engagements with lyceums in the United States. We are permitted to quote from an interesting letter just received from the gentleman referred to, dated Geneva, July 18:—

With ne ves still quivering from the discontinuous

in the United States. We are permitted to quote from the gentleman referred to, dated Geneva, July 18:—

With nerves still quivering from the dixry Alpice cliffs over which the Cents Railway has just launched me here from Haly, I hasten to report the execution of the commission which you entrusted to me. * * * In a retired quarter in the royalty-foreaken city of Turin, plasma Cavour, over an humble wine tavern, I found the loulely Magyar—a mild, sedate, rather dignified-looking gentleman of apparently sixty years of age, whose demesnor, though grave, exhibited much affability and courtesy.

When I had laid your proposition before him, and conveyed an assurance of the delight which his acceptance of it wend afford the Republic, he expressed his deep regret that it was beyond his power to entertain it, averring that he had retired entirely from public life, and was now a recluse from worldly affairs. To this, as a rejoinder, in order to remove any impression that a visit, such as was proposed to American, would involve his interference in or contact with political matters, I described to him the character and organization of American lyceums, and the work done by the Boston Lyceum Burean for them, showing that the discourse you deared from him would require only his views upon some accisi or literary topic, apart from the atmosphere of politics altogether. I added, likewice, that, while gratifying and instructions to others, it would scarcely fail to be a subject of intense interest to him to have an opportunity of comparing the America of his day with that of the present, and of observing what twenty years could do in the great B-public.

He then warmed in conversation, and said: "I di-like giving you a cold negative, but I am not the man I was; I have had heavy domestic afflictions; I want nerve, and as for addressing a number of people, I have almost forgotten what public speaking was. I am in truth a changeling. Were I to go anywhere, it would be to America. But," he added, "why want me? Are you not a nation

"" Will nothing move you, Signor?" I said.
"I repeat," he added, "were I to go anywhere it would be to the grandest country in the world, your America; but I think, from the sample before ms, you can dowithout Kossuth." Oh! spare my blusbes! but I am a faithful witness, and he had to pay a compliment in return for mine.

The upshot, however, was his emphatic determination to speak in public ne more unless duty to his own country demanded it. He requested me to say, however, that he felt highly flattered by the invitation and grateful for the consideration regarding his circumstances.

The Chinese servants in the employ of Europeans living at Canton, Hong Kong, and other open ports of the Chinese empire, receive from $7 to $10 for male personal attendants, and $5 to $6 for coolies who perferm the rough work. Cooks are paid $8 a month, and waiting maids from $8 to $10. Many foreigners keep boats, in which case each boatman receives $6 to $7 a month. It is stated that from the numerous servants required, a married couple in comfortable circumstances will expend, on an average, from $40 to $70 a month on servants' wagus alone.

A good story is told of a New York lawyer, who was bothered by the importanities of two un-get-rid-a-ble young lady canvassers for a new work. Finally, in order to get rid of them, he said: "Latics, the partnership of which I am a member, ha-lately heen so imprudent as to issue a new work of their own, which, in consequence of the enormous expense attending its illustrations, embellishments, &c., has completely orippled us." "Then, perhaps," replied the angelic canvasser, "we could procure you some subscribers. What do you call your work?" "Well, we have not fully determined, as yet; but I guess I'll let my wife have her own way, and call it after me—Charles Henry." Charles Henry

Charles Henry."

The Evangelical Alliance of the world, which was to have met in New York city on September 22d, has been postpored, since the war in Europe renders impracticable the attendance of the delegates—especially the French and German Christians, who are engaged in artiling a little "unpleasanteess" gaged in settling a little in a rather unchristian manner, as some people tbink.

Whow much trouble would be saved if people would heed the following sentence in "Lothair:"—" Never you sign a paper without reading it first, and knowing well what it means."

Since Queen Victoria took her place on the English throne, thirly three years ago, every other throne in Europe, from the least unto the greatest, has changed occu-

( America is estimated to contain over ten millions of square miles, each mile being capable of sustaining three bundred and fifty persons, or four times the present population

Au interesting incident relating to Mr. Dickens was mentioned in a recent speech delivered at Sheffield by Mr. Mun-della, M. P., who said he had been dislog with a distinguished artist, who made this statement: "A short time since I painted a -tatement: "A short time since I painted a portrait of Charles Dickens, It was ar-ranged that I should sit in his room while he was at work. He was a most painstaking, industrious, methodical man, and nothing would divert him from the regularity of his habits. I was there for hous, and he sat again and again, and he wrote, as it seemed to me, almost with anguish. I looked in his face and watched the anxiety and care. I face and watched the anxiety and care. waw the blotting and the rewriting of his works, and I was astonished to find how much he owed to his indomitable perse-Verance."

ANOTHER ESTIMATE OF DICKENS.—
A French paper printed at New Orleans recently contained the following announcement:—"Charles Dickens, the great American romancer, died yesterday of apoplexy.

He was the Walter Scott of America."

The Consum of 1870.

Mr. Francis A. Walker, Superintendent of the Cessus, states that he will be able to give the complete population of all the large cities of the United States by September 10th, and of the sutire country by October 10th, and of the sutire country by October 10th, and of the sutire country by October 10th, and of the center country by October 10th, and of the center country by October 10th, and of the center of the population of the country at 40,300,000. The population of large cities, it is alleged, will fall 20 oper cent, below the estimates of local calculators, as while the number of those who a arrive has been recorded, as secont has been taken of the departure. Thus, Chicago has an actual population of 250,000 sonis, against estimates of 400,000, and Cuccionati has barely 200,000, while the population was estimated at over 300,000. This tilscrepabcy between the estimated and the real population is common in all the cities, but is greater in the West than in the East. Matne, it is alleged by the journals of that state, has a population of 700,000, making a gain of 71.-400 since 1860. The city of Belfest has 2.270 inhabitants, a loss of 241, and piter cities exhibit a like diminution. The tip building towns show a heavy decline, but the increase in the Arcostook region is large. The census returns from Vermout show that the towns are losing in population, and it is believed to be probable that the number of inhabitants will be less than in 1860. New Hampshire shows an increase in the population of the large cities and a decrease in the agricultural districts. The state, it is estimated, has fallen off shout 15,000 in population, and will probably loss one member of Congress. Massachusetts has increased her population in the cities and the manufacturing towns show a decline in the country, but an increase in the cities and manufacturing towns in the farming districts. Beston, it is believed, has a population of 5,300, an increase of 654 since 1865. Newport has a permanent population of 12,522, a loss of 160 s

Protest Against Woman Suffrage.

A Pretest Against Weman Suffrage.
One hundred and forty women of Loraine county, Onio, all intelligent and highly educated, have sent to the Legislature the following memo-ial:

"We acknowledge no inferiority to men. We claim to have no less ability to parform the duties which Ged has imposed upon them. We believe that Ged has wisely and well adapted each sex to the proper performance of the duties of each. We believe our trusts to be as important and sacred as any that exist. We feel that our present duties fill up the whole measure of our time and shilities; and that they are such as none but ourselves can perform. Their importance requires us to protest against all efforts to compel us to assume those obligations which cannot be a-parated from suffrage; but which cannot be performed by my without the sacr fice of the highest interests of our families and of society. It is our fathers, brothers, husbands, and soms, who represent us at the ballot-box. Our fathers and brothers love us. Our husbands are our choice, and one with us. Our sons are what we make them. We saw content that they represent us in the corn-field, the battlefield, and at the ballot-box, and we will represent them in the school-room, at the fireside, and at the oradle; believing our representation, even at the ballot-box, to be thus more full and impartial than it could possibly be were all women allowed to vote. We do, therefore, respectfully protest against any legislation to establish 'woman suffrage' in our land or in any part of it."

INDIA RUBBER which, a few years ago, was of but slight value in the arts, is now

INDIA RUBBER which, a few years ago, was of but elight value in the arts, is now most useful, and should the new project of applying it as a moter prove successful, there will scarcely be a limit to the service it shall be to mankind. A working model of a car propelled by means of it was lately exhibited in New Orleans, and the trial is said to have been thoroughly successful, and such as gave reason to believe that a trial on a larger scale would be worth the undertaking. In the fore part of the model, and beneath the platform, is a moster-wheel, which acts like the drum on which the main-spring of a watch is wound. The india rubber is fattened under the platform, connected with the wheels, and wound around the drum, the length of the rubber, which is slightly gall.

Yanized, being one hundred and twenty-five feet for an ordinary horse-car, which, when wound, will give the necessary motion to the machinery for the propulsion of the car. No doubt, if this will work, steam power will, to a great extent, be done away with, for rubber, thus managed, is less dangerous and far more easily taken care of.

Extended the war. Scientific parties are preparing in all pacts of the world to observe to fapthy and should be are preparing in all pacts of the world to observe to fame the times of railroad carretal trials will be to transity and piting around them four charcoal fires, diametrically opposite each other, to which are it is said that the trees of railroad carretal trials will be to transity and piting around them four charcoal fires, diametrically opposite each other, to which at it is said that the trees of railroad carretal trials will be to transity and piting around them four charcoal fires, diametrically opposite each other, to which at it is said that the trees of railroad carretal trials will be to trial them to tree which are the trees of the world to observe the to tree will, and piting around them four charcoal fires, diametrically opposite each other, to which at it is said that the trees of railroad car

Should the scheme of a United Germany ever be realized, and if we may judge from what the leading itsellects of the Teutonic races have done and are doing, the German nation will assume the position of the leading people of Europe. They are now eminent in literature, learning, philology, philosophy, freedom of thought and nobleness of imagination, music and poetry; and to these laurels must now be added those of the highest qualities of the soldier and the statesman. and the statesman.

and the statesman.

(37 A Monterey, Cal., paper says: There is a breach of promise case pending in the District Court of this county, wherein the lady is the defendant. The parties are both Spanish, and live at Half-moos Bay. The plaintiff claims $10,000 damsges—that being supposed to be about the sum total of the fair senorita's worldly possessions. This is the first case in this state, so far as we are advised, in which a man has brought suit advised, in which a man has brought suit against a woman for giving him the mitten. This is one of the beretofore undeveloped principles of men's, which has generally been principles of men's, which has generally been monopolised by women.

23 A PLEASANT SLIP.—A pleasant slip of the tongue is recorded by a French paragraphist. A lady was enjoying the succept of her lover, when the belt rang, and the servant announced "the doctor." "Tell bim I am ill, and cannot see him," was maken's reply.

bim I am ill, and cannot see him," was maism's reply.

A large party of ladies and gentlemen were ancending the Carakill Mountains recently, when ope of the trunks belonging to a young lady fell off the coach and was broken open, all the contents being scattered into the road. In gathering them together, which she calmly did, she was assisted by a gentleman to whom she had only been introduced that day. He was so struck with her sweet di-position and good nature, displayed under the trying circumstances, that he fell in love with her. At the end of two weeks he proposed, was accepted, and they are to be married in the fall.

Joung miss of twelve, to whom he was giving good advice about Leut. She said, "Pahaw! don't preach self-denial to me whom you have your mouth full of nasty tobacco."

The reverend gentleman turned saids his head, removed the odious weed from his mouth, and has never since tasted it.

Est Sir Francis Cro-sly, an English milliousire, has given £200 600 to certain public charities, with the promise that it shall be perpetually invested in United States securities.

An urohin being sent for five centa' worth of mace-sboy snear, forget the name of the article, and asked for five centa' worth of make-a-boy snears.

for him."

Carlyle says, "Make yourself a good man, and then you may be sure there is one the lees rawed in the worth."

A gentleman at an inn being supplied with two candles which gave a very dim light, called to the waiter, "Here, waiter, let me have a couple of decent candles to see how these others burn!"

A passenger on an Ohie railroad, aroused from a serene slumber by the tooting of the whistle, exclaimed patulantly, "The train has caught up with these catale again!"

again!"

Alady, who has made it a point to examine into the matter, writes that women shoppers will unmercifully soub a saleswoman, will rudely contradict her statements as to the goods being examined; in fact, show themselves wholly ignorant of the most ordinary rules of good breeding, and then complain of impertmence if a word is returned, or of inattention if the girl manifests her self-respect by remaining silent. If complain of imperturence if a word is returned, or of inattention if the girl manifests her self-respect by remaining silent. If waited on by a saleaman, their conduct, it is stated, is just the reverse.

The Springfield (Masa.) Republican says it may be monitioned, as a commentary on the Crispic cry about "taking the broad from our children's mouths to feed aliens," that there are now more laborers employed in the aboe business in North Adams, exclusive of the Chinese, than before the latter came, and, in fact, than before the latter came, and, in fact, than before the strike. Mr. Sampson will, within a few weeks, send for fifty more workmen from California. Of the seventy-two Chinamen he has now at work, all but four or five are doing finely. The incompetent ones he will sond back to San Franci-co. These Orientals continue peaceable, industrious, quiet, and eager to learn. They go to Sucday-school and behave like rational members of society.

A Kansas editor does not consider a cotemporary a gentleman, because he wipes his nose on his coat sleeve. Authory Trollope makes one of his herces despite and condemn as a low follow a worthy person, because the latter dusted his boots with a handkerchief.

In the church system in Norway there is a very wise arrangement, whereby a olergyman past work may retire with a super-

In the church system in Norway there is a very wise arrangement, whereby a clergyman past work may retire with a superannustion, which is charged against the income of his successor. There is also a widow's farm attached to each glebe, so that on the death of a rector, his wife is not driven from her old home without any place of shelter.

The Cincinnati Enquirer advises any body in want of fun to go to the Corman

The Cincinnati Enquirer advises anybody in want of fun to go to the German Gardens about eleven o'clock at night and ahout "Vise is France"

The excursions of the bees to collect honey are variously estimated at from one to three miles each, and they are supposed to make each about ten trips a day.

The all was shot a few weeks ago, in Austria, in Bellye, bearing a collar with the date 1648, and some arms partially effaced by time and exposure to the weather.

Of 622 murders committed in New York during the thirteen years ending with 1864, the perpetrators of 155, or one quarter of the whole number, have never been discovered.

December 224, is not forgotten even in the excitement of the war. Scientific parties are preparing in all parts of the world to ob-

N. Y., has received as a wedding present a fan made in Paris at a cost of $2 500 in gold. It is of tortoice shell, studded with tiny solutaire diamonds.

A young lady at a fashionable seaside resort says she has lost at least half a dozen husbands by appearing in a bathing dress, and she won't do it again until her matrimonial future is secured.

A gentleman of high position, in London, had a wife who was connected with many of the leading members of the nobility. The other day she ran away with another man, and the injured husband adopted a different method of avenging his wrong from that which is sometimes pursued. He merely advertised a reward of £5 for the discovery of the lady. As this did not bring her back, he amounced that he would give a further sum of £1 for her restoration, and that under no circum-tances would the reward be increased. Thus he caused it to be made known that he assessed the value of the partner of his joys at the precise aum of £7.

The tailors' strike in Cork, Ireland, has at length come to an end, the men having sufficiently punished themselves in their attempt to prevent the use of sewing machines in tailoring establishments, to be willing to work by the side of machines rather than to starve.

starve.

The Boston Saturday Evening Gasette says that Rev. Dr. Alexander H. Vinton was instantly cared of chewing tobacco by a joung miss of twelve, to whom he was giving

"Boya, don't you ever spekeriste, or waits for sunshin' so turn up. You might jest me well go an'sit down on a stone in the middle of a medder, with a pail atwist your lore, an'wait for a cow to back up to you to be milked."

EF A raralist at Newport, seeing a lady driving and her groom with folded arms behind, thought "that nigger must pay that nice-looking girl a pile to drive his carriage for him."

EF Carlyle says, "Make yourself a good man, and then you may be sure there is one the lees rascal in the world."

EF A gentleman at an inn being supplied with two candies which gave a very dim light, called to the waiter, "Here, waiter, target every time. The target, too, was so defaced as to be useless. This is undeniably good shooting.

AT CLAINVOYANCE.—A centributer to the Journal of Psychological Medicine, enthe subject of Modern Buperstriem, mentions the artifles of reading scaled letters laid upon the obest, and anys that it is a cause of great wonder that the premium of $2,000 effered by the French Academy of Sciences more than forty years ago has never been claimed. This sum was promised to any somnambulist who could prove herself able to read before a committee of the Academy a scaled ducument, prepared and laid upon her cheet by the committee.

AT gentieman, who appears to have suffered much from umbrells thieves, has discovered a plan for protecting himself. He purchased an old-frashioned blue coston umbrells some time since, broke two of the ribs, and cut off six isobes from the handle. On a recent visit to a botel, he left his "apparatus," as he calls it, in the public hall, and was not in the least surprised to find it in the same place when leaving.

The Delpino says that of the one hundred and twenty-four flowaring plants of Nova Zembla sixteen are fertilised by bees, eighty-four by been and flies and twenty-four by the wind. All these flowers that formerly existed there and were fertilised by the larger beetles and moths have become extinct with the disappearance of those insects.

sects.

The late Dr. Cabarros (a son of the celebrated beauty, Mme. Tallieu,) was asked:

Do you like bluaptockings?

He replied:

Yes, when they are clean.

Rates of Advertising.

Thirty cents a tipe for the first insertion. Twenty couts for each additional insertion. Farment is required in advance.

BOOK, CARD AND JOB PRINTING

Accurately and expeditionaly executed, on moderate

PRESS-WORK,

On the Most Approved Power Presses,

Done in superior style.

DEACON & PETERSON, 108 and 110 Hudson St., Philadelphia.

Mild, Certain, Safe Efficient. It is far the best cathartic trunchy yet discovered, and at once relieves and lavigorates at the vital functions, without causing is jury to any of them. The most complete success has long attended its use in many localities; and it is now offered to the general public with the conviction that it can never fail to eccomplish all that is claimed for it. It produces little or no pais; leaves or excites the nervous system. In all diseases of the six in, blood, stomach boxels, liver, kidneys—of children, and in many difficulties peculiar so women, it brings prompt relief and certain cars. The best physicians recommend and pre-cribe it; and no person who once uses the, will voluntarily return to the use of any other cathartic.

Sent by mail on receipt of price and postage.

1 Box. 50.25

1 Boxes, 2.6

1 Boxes, 2.6

1 It is sold by all dealers in drogs and medicines.

TURNER & CO., Proprietors, ang 20-cowiy

U cach sheet, 34 varieties, charte, beansist, 50c quire, post-paid. I. A. PITTMAN, Cincinnate, O. augu-4t

VEN-TRI-LO-QUISM.

The complete art of Ventriloquism, with illustrated instruction for making the magic whietle for insteading all animals. Mailed for Goly 15 cents. Address E. THORNYON, Hoboken, New Jersey.

ADY AGENTS WANTED in every city and "The Empress, or Lady's Companion," an article required by everyfe a sle. Agents can make from $5 to 100 a day. Send or circular. MADAME DA Voz. 746 Broadway, New York.

HAIR. Inventor of the celebrated GOSSAMER VENTLATING WIG and ELASTIC BAND TGUPACES, Instructions to enable Ladies and Gentleman to

For Nigs, Inches.

No. 1.—The round of the head.

** 2.—From forchead over the head to neck.

** 8.—From ear to ear round the forchead.

fle has always ready for sale a splendid stock of Gants' Wigs, Toupees, Ladies' Wigs, Half Wigs, Frizots, firaids, Curis, &c., besuitfully manutastured, and so cheap so any establishment in the Union. Letters from any part of the world will re-

THE LADY'S FRIEND.

DID HE POSCET HER? By LOUISE CHANDLER MOULTON, enthor "Floring From Pate," &c.
THE CARGANNON'S AUNT.

By AMANDA M. DOUGLAS, author of "The Debarry Fortune," "The Prize of Two Mon's Lives," &c.

Live, ac.

These will be accompanied by numerous shorter stories, poems, i.e., from the gifted pens of Louise Chandler Mouiton, Florence Percy, Amanda M. Douglas, August Beil, Mrs. Margaret Hoemet, Virginia F. Townsentd, Emma B. Ripley, Frances Lee, Frances A. Shaw, &c.—comprising as heilliant a galaxy of writers as can be found in the country.

The Laby's Frances Lee, Frances Lee, Trances Le

FASHIONS, FANCY WORK, &c.

A splendid double-page finely colored Fashion Flat-will illustrate every number. Also numerous other regravings illustrating the latest Fatterns of Dresses, Clouks, Bonneta, Hoad-dresses, Fancy Work, Embroi-lery, &c.

BEAUTIFUL STEEL ENGRAVINGS

"Taking the Measure of the Wedding Ring."

This is the title of our new and beautiful Premium Steel Engraving—18 by id inches—charaved in England as a cost of $0.000.

This represents a lover measuring his lady's finger for the Weddins Ring, and probably will be the most loopair engraving we have vere issued. This beautiful picture (or one of "The Wong of Home at Sea," Washington at Monnt Vermon, "Edward Everett in his Libsery," or "One of Life's Mappy Houre, "if his Libsery," or "One of Life's Mappy Houre, "if his Libsery," or "One of Life's Mappy Houre, "if his Libsery," or "One of Life's Mappy Houre, "if his Libsery," or "One of Life's Mappy Houre, "if his Libsery," or "One of Life's Mappy Houre, "if his Libsery," or "One of Life's Mappy Houre, "if his Libsery," or "One of Life's Mappy Houre, "if his Libsery," or "One of Life's Mappy Houre, "if his Libsery," or "One of Life's Mappy Houre, "if his Libsery," or "One of Life's Mappy Houre, "in his Libsery," or "One of Life's Mappy Houre, and also to every person sending on a clab!

Portraits of Distinguished Authors

The January number centains Fortraits (engraved on Steel from Photographs) of Mrs. Haray Woon, Phonsnes Percy, Louiss Charmian Mottrees, Edward Hongard Hongar

5. postage.

2. The magazines or papers in a club will be sent to different post-offices, it desired.

2. The consents of The Lady's Friend and of The Foot will always be entirely different.

2. Hemistances should be made, if possible, in a post-office orders, or in drains or checks payable.

DEACON & PETERSON. No. 319 Walnut Street, Philadelphia. Specimen Copies will be sent (post-paid) for ten

OR. B. FRANK. PALMER, Pres A.A.LINE C

These inventions stand approved as the "best" by the most smiles a Scientific and Surgical Societies of the world, the it vestor having been housed with the award of "IFTY GOLD AND SILVER MEDIALS OF "FIRST Prizes" including the GREAT MEDIALS OF The Prizes "Including the GREAT MEDIALS of the WORLD'S EXHIBITIONS IN LONDON AND NEW YORK; also the most Honoray Report of the great SOURTY OF SURGEONS OF PARIS, giving his Petersis place show the KNGLISH and PHENCH.

DR. PALIMER gives personal attention to the best-news of his profession, sided by men of the best-news of his profession, sided by men of the best-news of his profession, sided by men of the best-news of his profession, alded hymen of the best-news of his profession. He is specially commissioned by the GOVERNMENT, and have the patronage of the prominent OFFICIENTS and has the patronage of the prominent OFFICIENTS and have the patron of the prominent of the most characteristic way the patronage of the prominent of GENERICALS and more than a thousand less distinguished officers are solders have worn the PALMER LIMBS on series duty, while still greater numbers of smilenet officials.

Att Genuise "PALMER LIMBS" Asset the

All Genuine "PALMER LIMBS" have the name of the inventor affined.

Pannhiets, which contain the New Buiss for impulsitions, and full information for persons in want of itselfs, sent free to applicants, by mail or otherwise.

The antention of Surgeons, Physicians, and all persons interested, is most respectfully solicited.

The well-known LINCOLN ARM is also made solicy by this Company. This Arm has the patronage of the U. S. GOVERNMENT. To avoid the imposition of PIRATICAL COPY-187%, apply only to Ds. PALMEN, as above directed. set30-1v

AGENTS WANTED

o sell the new Picture,
THE HOME ABOVE. Price $5, 1344 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

STRANGE, BUT THUE.—By conding 25 ocats, with age, helpht, color of hair and eyes on will receive by return mail a correct p ettare of your fature husband or wile, with name and date of marriage. Andreas D. C. CUTLER, Carthager, 10.

GOLD! GOLD!—My GOLDEN COMPOUND will force the heard to grow on the smoothest face, or hair on the haldest head, thick and heavy, in every case, in il days, or money refunded. Sent by mail, postage paid, for 50 cents a package, or 3 for 31. Address M. A. JAGGRES, Calheun, Ilis...

HEALTH FOR CONSUMPTIVES, .... will send free to invalide full directions how to prepar from a common plant a certain cure for Con-semption, from Astic, Catarrh, etc. Addr as Dif. PALMEH, Lock Box P, Brookiya, New York.

THE BRIGHT SIDE.

Mouthly, 25 cents, semi-mouthly, 50 cents, weekly, $1 a year. Specimen Fags. Large premiums for clure. Largest elements of any children's publication in the world, considering length of time published. Is success an index of merch Kasawase and see.

JOHN B. ALDEN & Co., aug80-18t.

Union. Letture from any part of the world will receive stiention.

Private rooms for Dyeing Ladies' and Gentlemen's non-convertions for Dyeing Ladies' and Gent

LIFE IN UT MYSTERIES OF MORMONISM

By J. H. BEADLE, Editor of the Sali Labe Report BRING to EXPORE of THREE SECRET MITCH, CEMEMORIES and CHRISES.

With a full and authorije biocery of Polygomep and the Mormon Seci, from its origin to the pre-unit sine. Agests are mearing with upprecedented viscours, one in Rockville, ind., reports 13 subscribers in two days, one in United, N. J., 6t in two days, one in Bloomington, Ill., 6t in fare day.

A-ENTS WASTED. Send for Circulars and one in Send Company on the Company of the Compan

10,000 AGENTS WANTED.

Persons wishing to engage in light, products and steady employment can find no eafer or better paying business than in the sale of our wachines.

They are atwacte, durable, handsome and adapted to the largest rance of work. Agents, male or female, paid from $100 to $550 per month and ca-

A $28 Sewing Machine Given to Agents. Address BAKER SEWING MACHINE CO., Cleve-land, Ohio.

ELEABLE AGENTS WANTED every the whore to carves for the sale of "FREINE HOUSE'S NOW EXPLOSIVE ENCIRENCE LAND," the unit lamp that is also carrely safe under the circumstances. Hold for a circular to HADALL & MONT-COMERY, 1953-45 - 10 Arch St., Philadelphia.

COCHEMANS. 18 LOW-WATER STEAM CALARIA, used in New, can be applied to any botter by any riscchaole. Waterasted to grand archest danger from low-soler in all cases. Some for circulary Agents without. J. C. C. C. TRIANS, 1986 & Rochoster, New York, Manufacturer.

Debots T'N SO-CENT PIANOF SETS
D TUTOR.—The best and cheapent shorers a story et page, tall mune size, prior 50 come. Simple to harn from, core to teach by. These for changing, men's and indice' voices, fists, clarisant, cornel violits, concertina, tabliet upgas, $\frac{1}{2}\sigma_{\text{c}}\sigma_{\text{c}}\cdot\text{c}\sigma_{\text{c}\sigma_{\text{c}}\cdot\text{c}\sigma_{\text{c}}\cdot\text

THE ONLY GREVING Oroids Orld Pos Made.

P. CLECTRO MEDICAL COLLEGE.

Lecture commence October & 1870. Free for the course $30. No other capment, dead for announcement. JOS., olTES, M. D., Dean, $14 Pins. St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE BOWER MICROSCOPE.

Magnifying 800 times, massed for 60 Curry, France for $1.08. Address F. P. BOWER, 1001-07 Box B602, Boston, Mass,

C PARKS, SNG VINAUTIES are ladies' and D gents' "Laws Diamond Pina." Samples seet by neal for the Address B. FOX & CO., Station A, New York.

VINEGAR, flow MADE PROM Borghum in 16 hours, without using drurs. For dir-culars, address F. E. SAGE, Vinegar Maker, from-well, Conn.

COLLEGIATE INVITTUTE for YOUNG Colling and the collection of the collection of **Quite Run Down.**—How often is this expression used by persons whose bodies and minda are exhausted by the toils and anothine of business life. Mere stimulants do no good in such cases. Their first effect is transient. The re-action desactions. In Tannant's Exprancesoary Salvran Apacies, the true remedy for this breaking down of the physical energies, and the animal splitts is provided. It renovates and refreshes the assimilating organisation to the control of the provided of the provide

ETOCH MORGAN'S SONS. 1909

Household Purposes

SAPOLIO

Is BETTER and CHEAPER than SOAP.

Dore its work quickly, easily, and with less labor than any ofter compound; cleans windows without water; removes stains from wood, marble and stone; cleans and brightens instead and table ware; from and brighten seates and table ware;
for general house cleaning in unequalled; polithen
the bane, non, copper and steel; removes oil, rast and dist from machinery; removes stains from the band which soap will not take off, see. Bold as all Growry, Drug and Notion where. Wholesale

911 Washington Mt., New York, jy23-cowif 30 Oxford bit, London.

2000

WIT AND HUMOR.

That Syring Water.

An invalid lady heard much of the beneficial properties of the water from a certain spring some distance from where she resided. She had read a pamphiet that one merated many diseases for which it was specific, among which she recognized at least half a-dozen with which she was afflicted. Buch to her joy, she was told that her son had to visit the very town where it was located; and a five-gallon keg and a strict injunction were laid upon him to bring back some of the water.

cated; and a revegation may as a strict injunction were laid upon him to bring back some of the water.

The keg was put into the pheston, and alippine under the cent, was overlooked. The business was urgent, and took some time to perform it, and the water was quite forgotten. He had got near home in the evening, when, kneeling down under the sent for something, he felt the keg. To go back was not to be thought of, and to admit his stupidity was impossible.

He therefore drew his horse up by a wall, near which was an old well from which the family had drunk for a century, and filling the keg, went home.

the keg, went home.

The first question was, "Did you get the water?"

"Yee," said he; "but hang me if I can see any difference in it fr.m any other water;" and he brought in the keg.

A glass was handed to the invalid, who dranh is with infinite relieb, and said she was surprised at her son's not seeing any difference. There was undoubtedly a medical taste about it, and it did not fill her up as other water did, which she had always heard of mineral water.

of mineral water.

Her son hoped it would do her good; and by the time the keg was exhausted, she warendy to give a certificate of the value of the water, it having relieved her of all her Magie Simplified.

The following tricks of legerdemain will be read with interest, especially as we are having a dearth of amusements:

The Magic Stick.—To do this trick properly you need a pearl-handled knife, and a stoat hardwood stick some two inches in length. Sharpen the two ends of the stick and then try to crush it endways, either between your hands or by sitting upon it. This, to the astonishment of the company, you will find it impossible to do. The better to deceive them, keep a perfectly calm countenance.

to deceive them, keep a perfectly calm countenance.

The Four Jacks.—Scleet a pack of cards with plain white backs. Take out the four jacks and burn them before the company, letting them see the sakes. Now, shuffle the cards quickly, and, holding them up in the left hand, give them a sharp rap, with the face of the cards down, and defy the company to find the jacks. You will find them completely fooled.

The Flying Hen.—Select a large well-fed hem—the color is immaterial, though black is best; place her in a sitting posture on a smooth surface; then place over her a pasteboard box eighteen by thirty inches. Pound emartly on the top with a bone-handled table knife for three minutes, and then suddenly raise it, when the hen will immediately fly away. This trick can be performed by any person of average intelligence, who gives his whole mind to it.

Chemically considered, water is a combination of oxygen and hydrogen. Home people, thinking to improve on nature, add a little Holland gin, if they want it for a beverage. Milkmen put milk in it before pedding it out to their customers, to give color to their transactions. Chemists say that, at the lowest estimate, five-sixths of the living human body is simply water. This is a grave warning to people who are given to the intemperate use of cold water as a beverage, for they are in danger of adding the other sixth, and becoming all water.

An old toper, who had read somewhere that five-sixths of his body was water, said it was none of his fault—he hadn't taken any in over forty years. He wept bitterly because he had to have so much water with his whiskey.

his whiskey.

Water is a capital thing for running saw-mile, factories, and canal boats, putting out fires, rinsing tumblers, sprinkling the streets, and starting a thunder-storm, and it is an in-dispensable aid in the formation of temper

Not Very Complimentary.

One of the Little Corporal's correspondents vouches for the following:
At one of our neighbor's houses was a had as a guest a minister, and esteemed friend. Little Anna watched him closely, and finally sat down to draw on her slate.

"What are you drawing, Anna?" asked the cleryman.
"lee making your picture," answered the child.

So the gentleman sat very still, and she worked away earnestly for awhile. Then she stopped, compared her work with the original, and shook her little head.

"I don't like it much," she said. "Taint a great deal like you. I dess I'll put a tail to it and call it a dog."

Fancy his feelinga. What a likeness it must have been!

must have been!

" Boo!" to a Gooor.

Ben Jonson having heard that Lord Craven was very auxious to see him, went to his lordship's house. Being in a somewhat tattered condition, the porter refused to admit him, and gave him some impertinent language, which Ben did not fail to return. White they were wrangling Lord Craven happened to come out, and desired to know the cause of the quarrel. Jonson immediately said, "I understood year lordship wishes to see me?" "You, friend," replied the lord, "who are you?" "Ben Jonson," replied the other. "No, no; you cannot be Ben Jonson, who wrote the Silent Woman; you look as if you could not say loo to a goose!" "Boo!" eried Ben. "Very well," said his lordship, who was better pieased at the joke than offended at the affront; "I am now convinced that you are Ben Jonson."

SPICE.—That was quite an amusing cir-cumstance, when a well known representa-tive from one of the New England States rose at a public dinner to make a speech, and spoke thus:

sidest, I can't help thinking of those beautiful lines of Longfellow's, in which he says—or—ab—or—which say—or—or (tapping his forchoad,—or—Mr. President, I believe I've forpation the lines I remembered." And he

UNCLE JACK (a little so-so.)-Ab, you're a lucky fellow, such bot weather as this. can keep cool if anybody can.

The Pumpkin.

The Pumpkin.

Josh. Billings, in imitation of Greeley, is writing a series of articles entitled, "What I Know of Farming." Here is what he says: "Concerning the Pumpkin.—This berry is a favorite with the natives of the interior of New England, who prefer it to the goese-berry for the making of fruit cake, and who likewise give it the preference over the raspberry for feeding cows, as being more filling, and fully as satisfying. The pumpkin is the only esculent of the orange family that will thrive in the North, except the goard and one or two varieties of the squash. But the custom of planting it in the front yard with the shrubbery is fast going out of vogue, for it is now generally conceded that the pumpkin, as a shade tree, is a failure." vogue, for it is now generally conceded the the pumpkin, as a shade tree, is a failure.

HE'D RATHER STAY.—A Jerseyman was very sick, and not expected to recover. His friends gathered around him, and one of them said:

"John, do you feel willing to die?"
John made an effort to give his views on the subject, and answered, with a feeble voice : "I—think—I'd rather stay—where I am-better acquainted."

Sins of the Table.

One glorious afternoon in the waning summer, young men and maidens, not a few, and i among the number, were invited to take tea with one of these hospitable country folk. An invitation to tea there means that you are to go at one P. M., and remain till nine in the evening.

We were on time, and as the day was too good to be spent in-doors we were out and in like been from the hive.

Our hostess was visible occasionally as she flitted? no, plodded about, on household cares intent, and I couldn't help thinking what a self-acrificing body she was, to hold cares intent, and I couldn't neep taims-ing what a self-ascrifteing body she was, to be toasting herself over a hot stove that glowing afternoon. And I inwardly re-solved that my wife, were I ever so fortu-nate as to have one, should not be plagued nate as to have one, should not be plagued with visitors.

At early candle lighting we were summoned to tea: and I saw not only the dainties that usually compose that meal, but breakfast, dinner, and a lunch thrown in besides. There was chicken fried and chicken stewed. There was the "biled dish" consisting of beef, pork, and all the vegetables indigenous to that climate. There were the biscuit and cold bread. There were pies and cakes, and custards, and cheese, and fruits. It seemed to me that a company of one hundred strong, could have feasted at that table, and been filled without a miracle.

How had that one woman, with a walking

table, and been filled without a miracle.

How had that one woman, with a walking baby at her skirts and a baby that couldn't walk, in her arms, have accomplished all this? I was lost in astonishment. I thought of Thanksgiving, of Masonic suppers, of prodigal sons and fatted calves; and wondered what these people would have for a feast in case of any great event-the return of a prodigal, far instance.

But the savory odors from the viands before me, with the promptly issued order—
"Now take right hold and help yourselves," brought me to my senses, or my senses to me, and I fell to.

me, and I fell to.

Master Charlie, the eldest son of mine host, somewhere in that uncertain state in which he looked too large for girls' clothing and hardly large enough for boys', refused to eat, and his father was troubled in spirit.
He inquired anxiously of the mother, if the boy had eaten anything since dinner—to which question she gave answer, "Nothing of any account." of any account.

I was perplexed. How did they reckon food there, if a buge biscuit divided into three sections, each thickly buttered, a trithree sections, each thickly buttered, a tri-angle from a minoe-pie, whose diameter, at the lowest estimate, must have been ten inches, and a pint of milk were not of "ac-count" with a child less than three years old? And all that I had seen that youngster dispose of during the afternoon. I felt it to be cruelty to permit him to eat anything more even did be wish it, though I dared not any so.

"Mother" replied in the affirmative, and apologised for having one edible in the house that was not represented on her table on the ground of there not being enough to "go round."

ground of there not being enough to "go round."

Pater familias rose from the table, seised one of the twin tallow dips whereby the apartment was darkly illumined, and like Engene Aram, "took three heast strides," which landed him in the buttery.

There was a confused rattling among the pottery for a brief period, and then the man emerged from the place of good things, the tallow dip in one hand, a pint bowl, from which uprose a huge iron spoon, in the other, and "victory at last" was written all over him. You saw it gleam in his freckled face and bristling hair; you heard it in the heavy fall of his cowhide boots upon the bare floor and in the flapping of his blue cotton trewsers moist with the dews and damps of the placed the bowl, nearly full of the "pound for pound" sweetmeats, before the

He placed the bowl, nearly full of the "pound for pound" sweetmeats, before the sick child, whose vociferous grief was instantly assuaged. He clutched the spoon frantically and swallowed the indigestible compound to the delight of his fond parents and pronounced it good; after which his normal appetite was restored to the extent of his calling for a wedge of awest cake, and a cup of tea so strong that it banished sleep from the eyes and slumber from the eyelids of the unfortunate writer till nearly day. And in the tossings and weariness that night, he resolved to hift his woice against the sins of the table whereof this massacre of the infants is one of the most uspardenable.

There is encouragement for women to tell the truth about their age.

AGRICULTURAL.

Cleaning the Premises

We find what we would say on the above subject so well said in Moore's Rural New Yorker, that we make room for the article Yorker, that we make room for the article entire in our columns.

We entreat all our readers to give it the most thoughtful and conscientious heed.

It is lamentably true, painfully, terribly true, that every summer many precious lives are lost, simply by neglect to clean premises. The magnitude of such loss in any one case only those can know who have seen a dearly beloved member of the household whose presence alone was a parental heradication. beloved member of the household whose presence alone was a perpetual benedication, pass away from sight and sound and fond embrace, never more on earth to mingle with the household group. The thought of such a possibility is sufficient to stimulate any and every one to use the utmost pre-caution.

aution.

Very vague ideas of cleanliness many persons have. They seem to think it consists in polished brass and silver, in shining crockery and wnite linen and well-scrubbed floors, forgetting that a whited sepulchre which appears beautiful outwardly may be full of dead men's bones and all uncleanness. Many a perfectly kept house is in close proximity to a privy vault that has not been cleaned for years, and the soil about it is saturated and reeking with the waste from the sink and cellar, and the well from which the water for drinking and cooking is drawn has from long opportunity become poisoned with the drainings from the barn-yard and pig-sty.

pig-sty.

Many a person who would consider a moal spoiled if but a fly should fall into a dish, consents to use such water and breathe such air, and in addition, for want of proper ven-tilation, take into the lungs the breath that other persons, diseased parhaps at that, have thrown off.

other persons, diseased perhaps at that, have blown off.

ount" with a child less than three years old? And all that I had seen that youngster dispose of during the afternoon. I felt it to be cruelty to person this to eat anything more even did be wish it, though I dared not say so.

"Have some chicken," urged the anxious father, "you're an awful boy for chicken, allers."

At this remark, whether from the memory of departed joys in the form of chicken, of which he was now unable to participate, or from some other cause, the child lifted up his voice and wept.

The man could not eat. He knew this "little faithful copy of his sire" was sick; for never before had be been known to refrain from chicken.

Presently this affectionate, though most unwise parent started. A bright thought had struck him.

"Mother," said he, addressing his spouse, with a tone whereis conjugal devotion, filial and paternal affection, hope and fear were all most beautifully blended, "Mother, gos any sam ?"

sphere, who, in the short space of four weeks, buried five of its members, whose deaths were eccasioned by diptheria. The head of the family would not admit that there was anything amise about the out-houses, cellar or drains; but an intelligent physician ferresed out an old, neglected drain, which ran under the kitchen and pantry, and had thus poisooned the blood of the whole household, and laid five of the youngest of its members under the cod. Buch lamentable visitations are considered as chastenings from an Almighty hand, whereas they are directly traceable to an ignorance of common physical laws.

cal laws.

A damp, close cellar, filled with disagreeable dors, proceeding from decaying vegetables, will sow the seeds of disease in every family, and the youngest will first succumb to its nexicous influences. Have you inspected the lower regions of your house this season? Have you looked over the potation, cabbages and turnips, and thrown away the mould and decay which have collected? If you have not, do not delay any longer. Throw open the hatchways and the windows, gather up all the decaying fragments, sweep the walls and floors thoroughly, mix a whitewash of unalaked lime and water, and add to it enough copperas to make it a bright yellew. There is no disinfectant which is more efficacious than sulphate of iron, commonly called copperas. It is very cheap, costing only a few cents per pound; it is very obsorious to rate and mice, and they will vacaste a cellar which is washed with it. If bits of the crystals are scattered among their hausts and in the corners of the cellar, they will "vamose the ranch," We know this from experience, living in an ancient house greatly infested with rodents, whose nightly rampages banished alsep from our eyes. We tried copperas, in whitewash, and dissolving it in water, sprinkled the floors thoroughly with it. The wood-house was soon alive with rate, and two large eats enjoyed huge sport for a week or ten days, slaying them hourly. Not a rat's footfall has been heard since. We beg our rat infested readers to try this simple remedy. They will purify the whole atmosphere of the house and expert their unyseloment. Cleanliness is the best physician we can employ; his charges are comparatively low; he gives no medicine, and he invigorates the spring them hourly. Not a rat's footfall has been heard aince. We have considered in this broad land. With an abundance of pure water, fresh air and exercise, we should exproves that imp, disease; and he would surely be made to keep his distance if we could only understand the laws of hygiene—6. a., the art of preserving our health. Without have an excellent fertilizer.

We hail with gladuess the use of earthclosets. They will certainly save many lives.
The sickening odors which arise from so many of the cabinets in city houses are deadly as the far-famed Upas tree. If the earth closets can be introduced into tenement houses, and properly attended to, they will work a much to be desired reformation.
The Chinese make great use of night seil, and by the aid of these arrangements the market cardens around New York could be provided with the best of stimulants, and a prolific source of disease would thus be made to furnish most succulent food. have an excellent fertilizer.

How to Make Poultry-Raising Pay. Mr. Warren Leland, of the Metropolitan Hotel, N. Y., who owns a farm at Rye, N.

try, writes the Farmers' Club his experience in the care of fowls:— "I have found that for every hundred and the turkeys go half-a-mile or tillage. It has a pond in the care, and waters without any soap, rinse in clean waters, and ashe heeps, and lime, and being the turkeys go half-a-mile or tillage. It has a pond in it, and many rock, and bashes, and careful, little being to tillage. It has a pond in it, and many rock, and bashes, and waters without any soap, rinse in clean waters, and gas, and give it a good coat of whitewah on both sides. In winter, where It is very dock, I have an old stove in their house, and when the fire goes out there is a so of them worms. 2 When a hen has set, it take her box, throw out the straw and earth, let it be out in the suu and rain a few dd and, and give it a good coat of whitewah on both sides. In winter, where I is very dock, I have an old stove in their house, and when the fire goes out there is a bed of an abes for them to wallow in. Summer and to the star end and on both sides. In winter, where I is very dock, I have an old stove in their house, and when the fire goes out there is a bed of abes for them to wallow in. Summer and the report of the mirture; when they retain and the report of the mirture; when they retain the country of the manner of the mirture should be added.

[27] In the city of Columbus, Georgia, ice a seam, and grant the man have retained and meat. It have a wheat bread and meat. It was when wheat coust $3, I believe in feed. They need just what a man who have well not do mesh of it without high feed. They need just what a man who have when wheat coust $3, I believe in feed they have a when wheat coust $3, I believe in feed the report of the machine, which will safe for works as the way spring, and a man on the faim has no other daty than to take care of my poultry. If requently turn off 3,000 spring chickens in a single season."

I have an old stove in the fair have no contended to the first of the machine would fall the columbia, it was estimated to have a subject the min at the works and sand, they want. 3. Another reason why I have such luck is becaus

THE RIDDLER.

I am composed of 88 letters. My 1, 7, 14, 25, 8, 41, 36, 63, 78, is a moun-My 2, 49, 59, 48, 72, 58, 18, is one of the

My 3, 53, 13, 60, 17, 85, 83, is a yellow sub-

My 3, 53, 13, 60, 17, 65, 33, is a yellow substance.

My 15, 23, 71, 53, 38, 50, 19, is a mountain in Asia.

My 16, 61, 6, 82, 79, 40, 10, is an oasia.

My 30, 63, 57, 83, 56, 87, 14, 43, is the act of inserting a scion in another tree.

My 34, 70, 11, 4, 29, 64, 73, is a bird.

My 35, 73, 38, 6, 67, 53, 30, 68, 69, 61, is a city in Asia.

My 31, 57, 82, 74, 62, 37, 13, 34, is where Napoleon I. was completely overthrows.

My 49, 60, 66, 66, 78, is a river in Scotland.

My 50, 54, 67, 46, 35, 57, is an island.

My 65, 27, 34, 44, 21, 50, 26, 77, 53, is an island.

My whole is a quotation from Cowper.

My whole is a quotation from Cowper.

Honeytown, Ind. PHILIP.

Listen to that rippling streamlet,
Sweetly swelling to the breeze;
Hear you not the gentle nephyr
Softly sighing through the trees?
Sparkling dewdrops gem the foliage.
Sporative insects hall the day,
Spreading flow'rets ope their bosom.
Birds send forth their ma'in lay.
I am there, too—try to find me—
Speak my value—if you can.
Deem me not beneath your netice;
Know—I am the friend of man.
Various in my form and nature.
Varying in my uses, too;
Dipped in rainbow tints, you'll see me
Sparkling in each brilliant hue;
Then, again, behold my whiteness,
Vying with the purest snow.
Ladies, you should hall me kindly—Waving near you, to and fro;
Does your lover false forsake you—
Fly, and seek relief in me;
Tell him proudly he may wander;
Keep your heart and set him free.
Statesmen, laywers, do not spurn me;
Oft I lead to paths of fame;
Wield me with mercy, and, in truth,
Gain by me a golden rame.
At present I must say adieu.
Cease not to prize my power,
But gently breathe my diotates kind,
And soothe the passing hour.

Question.

Which is preferable, $12,000 to be paid in six yearly payments of $2,000 each, to commence one year hence, without interset, or $10,000 payable in five equal yearly payments, at 7 per cent. per annum, allowing 7 per cent. per annum, in both cases, for the use of money as it comes into hand.

**Ball An answer is requested.

Send solution to

E. P. NORTON

Allen, Hillodale Co., Mich.

Conunctum.

Why is milk like the treadmill? Ans. Because it strengthens the calves.

Because it strengthens the calves.

When does a physician get paid by the church? Ans.—When he gets his amount from a chap ill (chapel.)

What is the great motive for travelling? Ans.—A locomotiva.

When is an alderman like a ghost?

Ans.—When he is a goblin (gobbling.)

MISCELLANEOUS ENIGMA—"Be not deceived: evil communications corrupt good manners." ENIGMA—Hyacinth, CHARADE—Seamanship.

RECEIPTS.

AFFILES AND RICE.—The following receipt makes an excellent dish for either luncheon or supper, and, when eaten cold, it will be found acceptable in hot weather. It can be made with any sort of fruit. Wash some rice (the quantity must be regulated by the size of the dish), pour a little cold water over it, and set it in the oven until the water is absorbed in the rice. Then add a little milk, and work that in with a spoon. Place the dish again in the oven, and keep working in from time to time until the rice is soft. When this is the case, work in a few spoonsful of cream. Take ome good baking apples, pare, core, and quarter them, and place them in a tart-dish with sugar and the grated rind of a lemon. Place the rice at the top, and bake in a moderate oven until the rice assumes a light-brown surface.

To Extract Grease From Silk.—Scrape French chalk, put it on a gresse-spot, and hold it near the fire, or over a warm iron, or APPLES AND RICE.—The following receipt

2000